3-Point Water Plan Outlined By Engineers

150-Page Report on Survey of City System Recommends Water Department Bonds to Finance Needed Improvements and Centralization of Supply.

Mansfield city officials had before them today the long-awaited report of the city water system, outlining necessary improvements, a survey of possible water sources for the future and recommendations as to methods of financing contemplated improvements to the system.

The report, a 150-page document submitted by George B. Gascoigne and Associates, Cleveland, included:

1. Recommendation of water department mortgage bonds of the open end type to finance needed improvements to the water distribution system.

2. Proposal for centralization of the city's water supply for the future in the Maxwell field.

3. Recommendation of general improvements in the distribution system through the construction of new mains and feeder lines and reservoirs.

The report of the engineers qualified its recommendation on financing of immediate improvements, which it has been estimated will cost about $225,000.

Although asserting that department revenue bonds of the open end type (issuable at various times, as parts of the improvement program are undertaken) could be retired without handicapping the department, the engineers based their statement on the assumption that the department income will be as great during the next few years as it was in 1936.

They also stipulated that an established rate schedule would be necessary to assure sufficient revenue to meet the debt, and pointed out that it would take "close figuring" to make payments on additional indebtedness until some of the present department debt, which amounts to $46,000, is retired.

However, the report did not find that an increase in water rates would be necessary.

Council Awaited Report.

City council, which has had the report under consideration for several weeks, has been awaiting the arrival of the Gascoigne report. Council had differed on whether bonds should be issued against the department itself, or whether the improvement should be financed by general bonds, submitted to popular vote for approval. Some members of council had insisted that if department bonds were issued, water rates would have to be increased to assure payment.

Mayor Earl A. McFarland has insisted, however, that department revenues were sufficient to retire the bonds and that no increase in rates would be necessary.

Only part of the Gascoigne report deals with the proposed $225,000 improvement, which is listed as "urgent" and draws up a long range water development plan that is calculated to provide the city with sufficient water sources and distribution system basis to meet requirements for the next 30 years.

The report estimates that such

PLEAD GUILTY

Pair Who Aided Escape of Bird Brothers Sentenced.

CLEVELAND — (AP) — Sylvia Bird and her brother-in-law, George Bird, pleaded guilty today in federal court to aiding in the escape of the Bird gang from Cuyahoga county jail Sept. 22.

Both were given four year senteces. George Bird was returned to county jail where he is to serve his sentence, while Sylvia Bird, wife of Frank Bird, will be returned to federal reformatory at Milan, Mich., where she has been serving another sentence in connection with bank robberies committed by the Bird gang, court officials said.

Sylvia and Frank Bird were captured five weeks ago at the home of her parents, and Frank is now serving a 45 year sentence in Leavenworth penitentiary on a plea of guilty to bank robbery.

STATE NOTES SAVE SCHOOLS

Arrive In Time to Assure Pay to Teachers; Coffers Were Empty, Bristor Reveals.

Mansfield schools were rescued from a financial dilemma and teachers were assured of "Christmas money" today with the receipt of authorization from the state department of education to borrow $47,093 against the fourth quarterly distribution of school funds. The Richland county schools received $58,911 in notes.

The city's allocation, part of an $11,580,675 distribution to Ohio schools, literally saved the day for Mansfield teachers who otherwise would have gone without their Dec. 15 pay checks, according to Dr. John H. Bristor, clerk of the board of education.

The funds, which will be borrowed immediately, will assure teachers of their salaries during December, but beyond that the picture is dark, Bristor said. State school officials could offer little hope of another cash distribution of funds before Feb. 15, and the money then will be used to retire the notes authorized today.

Moreover, the city and county school boards will have to pay

BLAMES SLAYING ON FIRECRACKER

Suspect Says Explosions Led Him To Fire in Self Defense.

WASHINGTON, C. H.—(AP)—The first degree murder trial of Everett Jones in the July 4 holdup slaying of Robert Lindsey, Jeffersonville poolroom proprietor, neared completion today after Jones testified that he killed Lindsey.

Jones, taking the stand in his own behalf yesterday, said he fired two shots after a firecracker explosion caused him to believe that his victim fired first.

"Lindsey reached for his gun which I could see in a drawer," he said.

Want To Earn More? Budget Your Time, Money, He Advises

Budget your time and your earnings if you want to make more money and stay out of a rut.

That was the advice of Howard J. Wisehaupt, exponent of personality and character analysis, in his third and final lecture to a capacity audience last night at Senior high school auditorium. He spoke on "How to Make More Money."

The three lectures on the value of personality and human nature study to individuals and business were given in Mansfield under the sponsorship of The News-Journal, Chamber of Commerce and Retail Merchants' association. Approximately 3,500 persons representing most of the industries and professions in the city and county heard the talks.

"Plan your life as much as 10 years ahead, make yourself ready to use opportunities when they come to you and save a part of what you earn," Wisehaupt urged in presenting his program for financial success.

"Do more than you're paid for if you want to get ahead. Ability can't be hid behind brick walls and if your present boss doesn't appreciate your efforts and ability and give you more opportunity, another boss will.

In his plan for saving money, Wisehaupt urged individuals to buy insurance as one of the best and easiest ways to put aside a definite amount each year.

"It will take sacrifices to save, but so does everything else worth having require sacrifice," he declared. "One of the big troubles with America today is that most

Suspends 2 Officials In WPA Death

Two Mansfield WPA officials have been suspended as a result of the cave-in at Bellville last month in which Hugh H. Call, Shelby, was killed, Associated Press dispatches from Columbus said today.

The officials are A. H. Moellenkamp, district project engineer, who resides at 32 Harter avenue, and C. O. Gettings, 471 West Fourth street, who was project superintendent.

The dispatches added that the suspensions were ordered by James L. Kelly, director of WPA District No. 6, in which Richland county is located.

Kelley was quoted as saying that Moellenkamp had been suspended for three weeks for failing to provide the proper bracing materials on the job, the Bellville sewer project, and that Gettings had been given a two weeks' suspension for disregarding WPA regulations to eject forcibly laborers working in dangerous positions.

Call was killed on Nov. 23 when a section of the wall of the sewer he was working in fell on him. He was alone in the ditch at the time.

Immediately after the tragedy, the Works Progress union in Richland county demanded that Dr. Carl Watson, Ohio WPA administrator make an "impartial investigation" of the accident. The union charged negligence on the part of the WPA officials, asserting they had failed to provide planking in the ditch. Call was the father of three children.

SHANGHAI—(UP)—Japanese troops seizing control of a large area of the international settlement ran into determined opposition of the United States marines today and immediately began contracting her lines.

Hot words passed between marine and Japanese officers, and the Japanese immediately withdrew from that part of the United States defense sector of the international settlement which they had entered, and began giving up part of the adjoining area which they had seized.

Police Say Ex-Actress Linked In $35,000 Gem Discovery.

LOS ANGELES—(AP)—Discovery of a $35,000 cache of gems and money today linked a former screen actress with the investigation of the unsolved slaying of Les Bruneman, a gambler.

The district attorney's office said a safety deposit box in a Hollywood bank, registered to Bruneman and another gambling figure, yielded $30,000 in loose diamonds and $5,000 cash.

The name of the actress whose identity was kept secret, was on a jewel tag in the box. Her attorney said he has started negotiations for return of the gems.

District Attorney Burton Fitts is investigating the possibility Bruneman may have been the fence for eastern jewel thieves.

RELIEF PLEAS SWAMP COUNTY

Officials Seek to Stem Tide Until Assurance of More Funds Is Given.

While the Ohio legislature ponders the relief problem in a special session at Columbus, Richland county relief officials and county commissioners today attempted to stem the mounting tide of applications for aid until there is an assurance of more funds.

Swamped with requests for food, clothing and fuel with the arrival of cold weather, the relief staff has been enlarged to six with the employment of Mrs. Arlene Holmquist, Mansfield, as an investigator, Miss Mildred Armstrong, county supervisor, said.

Streams of unemployed men with families to support file in and out of the Orange street relief office and the commissioners' office at the courthouse daily, only to be told that we can do nothing until the state provides some sort of permanent program, the officials explained.

The county's $11,000 relief fund will dwindle to almost nothing with the payment of the November relief bills, expected to be the highest in months, attaches at the auditor's office said.

Common Pleas Judge Hector S. Young's dismissal of the suit put the feeding problem back in Bahnsen's hands.

MODIFICATION OF WAGE-HOUR BILL FOUGHT

Supporters Map Strategy To Thwart Critics In Move To Scuttle Measure.

HOUSE VOTE DUE DEC. 13

A. F. of L. Executive Council Meets to Draft New Demand For Labor Standards.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Supporters of the battered wage-hour bill, successful in forcing a house vote this month, began a new fight today to save it from general revision.

Almost before the ink dried yesterday on the final signature to a petition freeing the bill from the rules committee, critics discussed proposals to modify or defeat it.

One group wants to strike all geographical differentials from the measure, a goal which would intensify the already heated north-south conflict over the measure.

Drafts New Program.

As the battle lines formed, the American Federation of Labor's executive council met to draft new recommendations concerning labor standards legislation.

The federation recently opposed administration of the program by a proposed five-member independent board. The house labor committee [illegible] substitute a similar [illegible] department [illegible] will have to [illegible] and [illegible] action [illegible] are reluctant to estimate the bill's chances for getting to President Roosevelt before the special session ends during Christmas week. It probably will come before the house on Dec. 13.

Hit 'Log Rolling.'

Both versions of the measure would empower a labor standards board to fix minimum wages as high as 40 cents an hour and a work week of 40 or more hours for workers in interstate industries.

Even before completion of the petition, circulated after Republican and southern Democrats on the rules committee had blocked the bill for months, charges were made in the house that "log-rolling" and undue pressure had been used to get signatures.

Congressman William A. Ashbrook of the 17th district which includes Richland county, was among the Ohio representatives who signed petitions to get the wage-hour bill out of committee for a vote in the house.

BATES INVOKES REGULATIONS PASSED IN '35

Orders Establishments to Stop Liquor Sales After 1 A. M. Except on Saturdays.

IT'LL BE MIDNIGHT THEN

Chief Says Violations of City Law, Delinquency Problem, Make Action Necessary.

Strict observance of Mansfield's 1 a. m. curfew for night clubs and liquor permit holders was ordered by Police Chief Meade K. Bates today as he called on all members of his department to enforce the ordinance passed nearly three years ago.

Bates announced that approximately 150 permit holders within the city were being notified that they are expected to close their establishments at 1 a. m. on week days, and promptly at midnight on Saturdays.

Blames Violations.

He said that the violations of the city ordinance that prohibits the sale of intoxicants between the hours of 1 a. m. and 6 a. m. during week days and from midnight Saturdays until 6 a. m. Monday, had forced him to take such action.

The [illegible] was given by [illegible] need for strict enforcement of the closing ordinance.

Bates pointed out that every permit holder in the city will be notified personally by members of the police department and that he expected their co-operation in observing the closing hour.

Few Temporary Exceptions.

"The exception, and that will be temporary, will be several of the clubs which have contracts with orchestras and floor shows," the chief said.

"We have agreed to go along with them until their contracts are adjusted. They in turn have agreed to stay closed all day Sunday."

Bates said he had issued orders to all officers that strict enforcement of the ordinance was to begin Monday.

He pointed out that failure to comply with the ordinance would result in arrest.

The ordinance, introduced by William Fenn, then councilman from the First ward, was approved by council Jan. 3, 1935. Violation of the order carries a fine of not less than $50 and not more than $200 and jail sentences up to six months.

The chief pointed out that the ordinance was passed before any night club permits, which under the state code allows the holder to stay open until 2:30 a. m., were issued in Mansfield.

Complaints from night club permit holders who object to the 1 a. m. closing hour will be referred to council, Bates said.

"I represent only the law enforcement agency of the city and if council sees fit to change the ordinance, that is up to it. Meanwhile I expect to see that the present ordinance is observed."

FINDS 'STINK' IN PAROLE QUIZ

Duffy Says Conditions Bared By Columbus Probe 'Smell to High Heaven.'

COLUMBUS —(AP)— Atty. Gen. Herbert S. Duffy asserted today that conditions uncovered by a special grand jury investigation of the state parole system caused a "stink to high heaven."

His observation was made coincident with a statement that he expected the grand jury to indict more than one person and that a proposed investigation in Stark county had been postponed indefinitely.

"If the stories related here have a smattering of truth, the whole thing stinks to high heaven," Duffy said. "The question of proving anything in court, however, is a different matter."

The jury, in recess until afternoon to permit a juror to attend the funeral of a relative, planned to call back to the witness stand, Arch W. Naylor, friend of Leland S. Dougan, former chairman of

Dual Unions Big Obstacle In Path Of Labor Peace

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Dual unionism, an outgrowth of organized labor's civil war, was the big obstacle confronting William Green and John L. Lewis today in their personal negotiations for a labor peace.

They spent four hours yesterday exploring all the possibilities for reuniting the American Federation of Labor and the Committee for Industrial Organization. Then they recessed until 8 o'clock tonight without reaching any conclusions of a peace pact.

Methods of merging the labor factions, with the CIO throwing off its separate identity to become an autonomous or semi-independent agency within the AFL, constituted the first problem before the conferees.

The clerk wounded in fire from pistols was John West. Police Chief Fred Lindner was assaulted by the robbers.

The payroll stolen was reported to have been that of the Texas company.

Tickets Sell Like Hot Cakes For Christmas Basket Show

The fact that the Christmas basket show is still two weeks away isn't stopping Mansfield folks from buying their tickets or making plans to attend in parties.

One Mansfield business man who has purchased a block of 40 tickets for every Christmas show for the past three years, got in on the first day's sale again this year, and the same sort of enthusiasm is expressed in groups all over town.

At downtown stores, people are asking for tickets, where they can be purchased, when they can be reserved—and here's the answer:

Downtown places selling tickets are Tawse's pharmacy, Shumaker's drug store, the Book Shop, all four theaters, the American Legion, the R. B. Maxwell shoe store, and The News-Journal office.

Neighborhood stores: Shaw's on Marion avenue; Schmidt & Peat, 394 Bowman street, and Tom Woodard, South Main street. They are also on sale at the various industrial plants over the city.

All general admission tickets may be exchanged for reserved seats after 12 noon, Dec. 16, at the Ohio theater box office.

This year's show, The Passing Parade of 1937, will be, according to the "producers" the biggest and best charity show the town has ever seen; it is not an amateur show as most of the performers are professionals, and the stage settings will be glamorous and the costumes dazzling.

A horde of pretty girls in evening clothes will be on hand to welcome the midnight theater guests — and incidentally, to sell candy bars and flowers. Community singing, a popular feature of each year's show, will be led by James Brownscombe and John Grabler, the "music-making" twins of the American Legion.

What this story really started out to say was: if you are going to the midnight charity show (and EVERYBODY goes) you had better get your tickets early, remembering the fate of the late comers last year who didn't see the show for the simple reason that there wasn't a seat left in the theater.

Fanny's Gonna Lose 'Her Man' To Holm, She Agrees

LOS ANGELES —(AP)— Fanny Brice sized up the Billy Rose-Eleanor Holm situation today and conceded: "It looks as though I might really lose my man."

It was the 46-year-old song and dance star's first public cognizance of her break with Rose, the diminutive producer of grand-scale musical shows.

Miss Brice, long famed for her tearful singing of "My Man," perused the news of Art Jarrett's divorce suit against Miss Holm and concluded, "Well, that checks it up to me."

"No, I haven't talked to Mr. Rose or to a lawyer," she said. "I've got to figure this out.

"It's a fine way for two people to be gallivanting around the country together. I'm not used to that sort of thing. I guess it's what you call modern."

Jarrett, an orchestra leader here, did not refer to Rose by name in his complaint, but he complained about his wife's conduct "with another male."

GALION RAISES $1,000 TO AID SCOUT TROOPS

Youth Program Launched After Organization; District In Appleseed Area.

GALION — After the appointment of committees and chairmen made at a meeting of the Boy Scout council Thursday night by O. E. Hill, council chairman, the organization of the council executive committee has now been completed, and activities in Boy Scout work are now well underway.

The finance committee headed by Harry Jackson has reported $1061 received in cash contributions which will enable Boy Scout troops to progress with their work under the Johnny Appleseed area.

Realization of the need of Boy Scout activities here caused a revival in the movement to be started several weeks ago when a campaign for funds was instigated and organization of a council was effected.

4 Troops Organized.

The four troops which are now organized in Galion include a troop at the East school under the leadership of Harold Harrington where 15 members are now registered; a troop sponsored by the Peace Lutheran church under C. B. Woodburn; the American Legion troop which has been directed by Ed Byrns for several years; and the troop at First Methodist church which had formerly been led by D. D. Montoya, and is now under the leadership of Howard Whitely.

Boy Scout officials plan to have five or six troops organized here. The next meeting of the Boy Scout Council will be held the second Thursday in January; and a Court of Honor will be conducted the second Tuesday in February.

WENNING NAMED TO NEW OFFICE

Elected 1st Vice President of Ohio Recorders at State Convention.

Howard P. Wenning, Richland county recorder, was elevated yesterday from second vice president to the first vice presidency of the Ohio Recorders' association at the organization's state convention in Columbus.

Wenning has held office in the association for three years, serving as secretary for two years and then as second vice president in 1937.

Other officers elected yesterday at the close of the two-day session were Gerald Culler, Lucas county, president; Russell Barnhill, Hancock county, secretary; Pauline Smith, Perry county, treasurer, and Jesse Wilson Belmont county second vice president.

Wenning who returned last night from the meeting, said discussions concerned chiefly the new state law, effective Jan. 1, which takes the recording of mortgages on automobiles from the recorder's office to the clerk of courts.

The law eliminates the old bill of sale system and replaces it with certificates of title, which are not issued to buyers until the mortgage on the car has been released.

The fee for filing the title certificate will be 75 cents and 35 cents will be charged for releasing the mortgage. Under the present system the recorder releases mortgages without charge.

The change is expected to increase the clerk of courts by three or four members, Wenning said.

Tammany Leader Resigns as Clerk In Face of Dewey's Rackets Blasts.

ALBANY— (AP) — Albert Marinelli, Tammany leader, today submitted his resignation as New York county clerk to Governor Herbert H. Lehman in the face of charges by Republican Prosecutor-elect Thomas E. Dewey that he is unfit for office.

Marinelli sent his letter to the governor two days after he was called upon to answer charges that he was "a political ally of racketeers, harbored a federal fugitive, and consorted with known criminals."

The answer was to have been made by next Monday.

Refers to Probes.

"I am informed that since Nov. 26 over 300 people from my neighborhood were subpoenaed before two extraordinary grand juries," the county clerk wrote the governor.

"Among them were doctors, lawyers, mothers with children who required their attention at home, and many of them have been directed by their respective foremen to return at a future date."

Marinelli referred to the two grand juries which Dewey called into session to investigate the Tammany leader's political associations after Lehman asked Dewey to swear under oath to his earlier campaign allegations.

"Mr. Dewey transmitted to you the police or criminal records of about 33 people which records have not thus far been made public," Marinelli said.

"For this I am grateful, not for myself, but because many of them are now leading decent, clean lives, bringing up families the best they can, and the disclosure of those names can bring only shame and distress to their innocent ones.

"I cannot and will not, no matter at what cost to me, cause any further suffering and humiliation to those people.

"There are but four weeks remaining to my term of office. (The term expires Dec. 31.)

"It is too brief a time to justify all of the suffering and humiliation that might result to them from a public hearing.

"For all of the above reasons, I inclose my resignation as county clerk of New York county."

FACES CHARGE

Canton Driver Arrested After Traffic Tie-Up.

Lee Peters, 39, Canton, was held in the city jail today under $500 bond, and will face Municipal Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch Tuesday on a charge of driving while intoxicated.

Patrolman John Gilbert and Russell Miles who arrested Peters last night, said he drove his car into the center of the intersection at North Walnut and Fourth streets against a red light narrowly missing a collision with a truck.

They said he had struck another car on North Main street earlier in the evening and that the driver had brought a license plate that had fallen from his car to the station. The plates were issued for a machine other than the one Peters was driving, they said.

Acting Judge Stuart H. Cramer set hearing of the case for Tuesday.

SERENADE BACK

Regains Popularity Lost in Jazz Age, Students Say.

EVANSTON, Ill.—(U.P.)—The serenade has regained the popularity it lost during the jazz age, the Daily Northwestern, student newspaper at Northwestern University, reported after making a survey of fraternity and sorority houses. Interviewers found the guitar the most popular serenading instrument and old fashioned love songs more favored than current song hits.

Bulk Left to Two Daughters and Son; Bequeaths $100 Each to 13 Others.

Two daughters and a son will receive the bulk of the estate of Solomon Aby, 96, veteran Mifflin township resident who died Nov. 17, according to the will filed yesterday in probate court. Thirteen others were bequeathed $100 each.

The will, drawn up last April 2, nominates Wesley Keefer as executor of the estate and requests that he serve without bond. No estimate of the value of the estate was made.

Bequests of $100 in cash each were made to Wesley Keefer, Ovid Mitchell, Harry Cook, Florence Aby, Leitha Bowden, Mae McFarland, Boyd Keefer, Clifford Aby, Paul Aby, Dora Mae Aby, Howard Cook, Earl Cook, and Dale Cook.

Former Lawmaker Indicted on False Pretense Charge.

CLEVELAND—(U.P.)—John A. Dombeck, attorney and former member of the Ohio house of representatives, has been indicted by the Cuyahoga county grand jury on charges of obtaining money by false pretense in connection with the attempt of Otto L. Stevick, 50, to obtain a liquor license.

Jointly indicted with Dombeck was Richard Evans, 36.

The indictment charged that during May and June Dombeck and Evans obtained $200 from Stevick to "entertain" Ohio liquor control board officials, and obtain the license, after Stevick's application had been turned down by the board.

HIGHER PRICES RULE MART IN SLOW TRADING

Gains Reduced Near Second Hour as Dealers Sell For Profits.

NEW YORK—(AP)—Moderately higher prices ruled in today's stock market, although yesterday's late rally seemed to have lost its force in most departments.

Gains running to a point or more were seen at the opening, but these were reduced near the second hour. Dealings were slow.

Many traders having profits showed an inclination to cash in and await better buying opportunities.

Securities markets abroad did better. Bonds improved. Commodities were uneven.

Dun & Bradstreet noted a pickup in retail sales this week, the aggregate ranging from 3 to 12 per cent over the same period last year. Demands for winter merchandise and Christmas gift buying was said to have accounted principally for the improvement.

While hopes for the administration's housing campaign continued high, current construction operations provided no especial cheer for holders of building material shares. The Engineering News-Record estimated private construction in November showed a drop of 47 per cent from the previous month and was 10 per cent under November a year ago.

RELIEF PLEAS SWAMP COUNTY

Officials Seek to Stem Tide Until Assurance of More Funds Is Given.

nesday, includes about 30 individuals to be provided for from the county fund. All 30 are in four families, Miss Armstrong said.

The nation-wide industrial slump which reached into Mansfield, and cold weather, are blamed by officials for the increasing number of indigent families. During the summer when the case load was low, the $4,000 monthly allocation from the state was ample for the county's direct aid burden.

Last month's relief bills, still to be paid, will reach $8,000, and unless funds from the state are increased proportionately, the county must continue to turn down needy families or go into debt to care for them, it was pointed out.

During the summer relief officials kept only ill or entirely dependent persons on the direct aid rolls, but with numerous fathers and single men now out of employment, county commissioners said they were wondering if something won't have to be done for them.

Mahogany-finished trim . . . Tail light, sun visor . . . Twin horns . . . Foot control for headlights . . . 3 body types . . . 3 colors.

FORD offers two new cars for 1938—the Standard Ford V-8 and the De Luxe Ford V-8. They are different in appearance—but built to the same high standard of mechanical excellence—on the same 112-inch wheelbase chassis.

Because people liked our 1937 car so well, they bought more than of any other make. They liked its looks, its smooth performance, and the way it handled. We have improved on that car in the newly styled Standard Ford V-8.

But some folks wanted still more size and style, with the same fundamental Ford advantages. For them, we have designed a new De Luxe line.

The De Luxe Ford V-8 Sedans are longer with more room, larger luggage space, and finer appointments. De Luxe cars are equipped with the 85-horsepower engine. They provide an added measure of motoring satisfaction at traditionally low Ford prices.

The Standard is even lower priced than the De Luxe. It has graceful new lines and well-tailored interiors. It gives you again a choice of V-8 engine sizes—85 horsepower or 60 horsepower.

Before Ford made V-type 8-cylinder engines available to every one, they were used only in expensive cars. Since then, four million Ford owners have learned the genuine enjoyment of driving an eight-cylinder car with all-around economy. The thrifty "60" engine, especially, makes possible in Standard models a very low first cost and equally low operating cost.

BOTH LINES LOW PRICED

With two distinct designs, two engine sizes and two price ranges, you'll find a 1938 Ford car to fit your personal needs exactly. Whichever one you choose, you get the same proved Ford features. Whatever price you pay, you get a car built soundly to serve you well. . . . That's the Ford way.

PRICES FOR CARS DELIVERED IN DETROIT—TAXES EXTRA

CARS FASCINATE HEINZ, IN U. S. ONLY 4 WEEKS

15-Year-Old German Boy Goes to School Here, Likes Auto Riding Best.

By FRANCES GENSLEY

After four weeks of exposure to American school boys Heinz Ickert doesn't understand all our slang, and has never eaten a hot dog, but he is able to define scram haltingly as "ged away."

Trying desperately but shyly to express himself, the 15-year-old German boy, from Stondal in Saxony, who has been in Mansfield for about a month, smiles when his English speaking listener grasps his meaning.

"Automobile riding," his uncle, Fred Miller, councilman from the Fifth ward, interpreted when Heinz chated animatedly about what he liked to do best. Through the medium of Miller, acting as interpreter, he told of his life in Germany and made an atempt to compare a boy's life there and here.

Ambitious to become an expert auto mechanic, Heinz is enrolled in the first grade at Newman Street School where he is learning English. His whole attention is centered on an interest in the automotive industry which obviously fascinates him, and his few understandable words of English are in reference to motor cars.

Has High School Education.

He has already had about the equivalent of a high school education and has had a rather good background in Latin and in addition to studying mathematics, physics, grammar, history and other such subjects, knows a good deal of the geography and typography of other nations.

Looking somewhat frustrated when he could not make himself understood, he explained that they were giving him a little writing, "noombers" and the "A. B. C.'s" in school here.

Next to automobiles, he likes American soft drinks, movies, radio, ice cream and cooking.

"I like America very much," he says in the staid and formal English employed by the foreigner, adding that schools are "much bedder here."

Heinz spent about three years in the Hitler youth organization. He attended school from 8 a. m. to 1 p. m. for formal education, but much of his training was received in these junior military camps. The organization, as Heinz describes it, is similar to the Boy Scouts, but the membership is, of course, compulsory and violation of rules is absolutely not tolerated.

Versatile Musician.

Heinz is a fairly versatile musician and plays the piano, violin and accordion. He plans to continue training when he has a better understanding of English. He recently participated in a program at the Newman school in which he played and sang German numbers.

After he learns English, he plans to get a job and buy a car.

Heinz came to the United States on the Bremen, with a brother, Fritz, and a sister, Eva, who is also attending Newman Street school, and his parents Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ickert. An older brother is in the Nazi army. The family is staying with Mrs. Conrad Bauer, 302 Second avenue. The children are the nephews and niece of Mrs. Fred Miller.

The family expects to remain here and seek citizenship. Heinz shakes his head in the affirmative until a strand of straight brown hair falls into his hazel eyes when asked if he wants to stay in the United States.

WED 70 YEARS

Oklahoma Couple Spend Quiet Day on Anniversary.

ANADARKO, Okla.—(U.P.)—Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Massey celebrated their 70th marriage anniversary by spending a quiet day discussing the early part of their married life. "We decided it would be more fun for us if we just sat around and talked about old times, rather than trying to have any kind of a celebration," Massey said. He is 91, his wife 84.

AWFUL PAINS ENDED BY WORLD'S TONIC

Impossible for Her to Regain Health Until She Began New Remedy.

"World's Tonic the Greatest Ever"

"It is a pleasure to be the means of many people learning about World's Tonic for it gives such remarkable results," said Mrs. H. E. Marcum of 662 Harris Ct., Akron, O. "I was in such condition for years that it was difficult for me to get about, because of the awful rheumatism over my body. I had been afflicted for years by this distressing ailment and try as I might I could find nothing to give me the slightest relief. When I would get up mornings I felt all over as if I had been beaten with a club. My memory became very poor and I felt just like as if I was an old worn out woman. Finally my friends, knowing of my condition and of World's Tonic, persuaded me to give this new remedy a trial. To my pleasant surprise, within just four weeks time I was well on the road to recovery—and after all other medicine had failed to help me in any way, World's Tonic is one medicine that has a different action and seemingly gets to the very source of the trouble. I do not hesitate to recommend this remedy to those sufferers most severely afflicted with similar ailments."

World's Tonic is a modern up-to-date medicine, as it comes from the various parts of the world where we or most of our ancestors originally came from.

World's Tonic is for sale at CENTRAL DRUG STORE.—Adv. (D69)

PRIVACY SURE

Voice Scrambling in Oceanic Calls Described For Club.

The method used by the American Telephone and Telegraph company to insure its subscribers privacy during a trans-oceanic radio-telephone conversation was explained to Kiwanis club members at their luncheon meeting yesterday by Roger F. Marshall, Cleveland representative of the Ohio Bell Telephone company.

All radio-telephone conversations are protected by the "scrambling process," Marshall explained, whereby the normal speech is "scrambled" or turned upside down. This is accomplished through a "mixer" that inverts the voice frequencies.

"The process was necessary to prevent radio listeners from tuning in on the conversations," he said. "The voice goes through the 'mixer' at the radio-telephone sending station and out on the air in inverted form and is then converted back to normal speech at the receiving end by the unscrambling device. The entire operation is not noticeable to the parties engaged in the call."

Little Sue Stokes, 10, of Newport News, Va., and her friend, Mary Coleman, 11, playfully scrawled with chalk on the walls of a shack in which Mike Ritter, 77-year-old recluse, resided. Infuriated by the little girls' action, Ritter grabbed a revolver and emptied it at the children. Sue died instantly; Mary was seriously wounded. Police had to spirit Ritter out of town to prevent mob violence.

FRIDAY, DECEMBER 3, 1937.

One of today's troubles results from the new-fangled notion that luxuries are necessities.

February may BE the shortest month—but the time comes when December SEEMS the shortest.

So the Ely Culbertsons have finally decided on a divorce—strengthening the now quite generally accepted idea that husband and wife should avoid being bridge partners.

Localizing Relief Responsibility.

THE PROBLEM of providing money for relief has been permitted to develop to the point of baffling legislators and other public officials.

From the large cities of Ohio, and other states, come insistent cries that state and federal government should, in some way, supply the money required for relief of the unemployed and also those who are habitually "needy."

The present relief dilemma is a natural outcome of the federal administration's action several years ago in taking over the handling of local relief in such an extravagant way as to lead many millions of beneficiaries to believe that unlimited funds are available for this purpose and that such profligacy could go on forever.

In a relief program submitted to the legislature by Governor Davey he proposes that state grants of money for relief purposes be matched equally by communities which are to be helped.

It appears entirely fair that at least this proportion of relief responsibility be made to rest upon each city or county, rather than that taxes be imposed upon people all over the state as a penalty for the blunders and lack of foresight evidenced by a few of the most populous cities.

If it becomes necessary, as now seems likely, that a reasonable share in state relief funds will not meet the legitimate needs of certain cities, then the matter of cutting to a mere majority the present 65 per cent requirement for bonding proposals on relief issues appears as the next emergency move.

There should be quite general understanding, by now, that however much money is made available for administering relief or providing a dole, the total could never become sufficient to meet potential demands. It becomes merely a matter of how best to provide the essentials of life to those unfortunates who are, through no fault of their own, unable to support themselves and their dependents.

A Woman Is Sentenced to Death.

FOR the first time in more than twenty years a woman is being housed in the Ohio state penitentiary at Columbus, under sentence of death in the electric chair.

A jury composed of eleven women and one man returned a verdict of guilty of murder in the first degree, without recommendation of mercy. Date of execution has been set for next March 10.

This case will continue to attract much attention, largely because of the fact that no woman has heretofore been executed in Ohio.

Mrs. Anna Marie Hahn contends that she is innocent of the crimes charged against her. A jury in the trial court at Cincinnati decided otherwise, motion for a new trial was denied and the court of appeals also denied a motion to permit her to remain in the Cincinnati jail pending appeal to higher courts.

Attorneys for the convicted woman announce that, should all other efforts fail, they will make an appeal to Governor Davey for clemency.

This is to be expected. It is done in practically every case involving a capital offense.

There is danger in this case, however, that sentiment rather than justice, will be made to play a large part in the matter. It is not right that sentiment should enter into the consideration of either courts or governor in a case of this kind.

If her conviction was on insufficient evidence—or if further evidence becomes available to show her innocence of the crime charged—then no stone should be left unturned to make sure there is no miscarriage of justice—but if it has been clearly proved that Mrs. Hahn is guilty of the heinous crime of which she has been convicted THE FACT THAT SHE IS A WOMAN SHOULD NOT SAVE HER FROM THE ELECTRIC CHAIR!

Two-Way Criticism.

SPEAKING of an independent press as essential to the functioning of representative government, Dean Carl W. Ackerman of Columbia School of Journalism says:

"The newspaper in a republic may be compared to a two-track railroad line. Information flows in two directions constantly—to the government, and from the administrative and legislative centers.

"The radio on the other hand is primarily a one-track railroad, on which the government, because of its public authority, may at any time dominate or control the traffic of information and opinion."

He points out an obvious danger in radio. Fortunately so far it is merely potential, not real. If air comment lately leans to either side, it seems to be against the government oftener than for it.

Sleep for Drivers.

THE German government is applying to motorists the railroad rule which forbids an engineer staying at the throttle continuously for more than a certain number of hours. Rest houses are to be built along the highways and drivers will be required to drive no more than eight hours without stopping for several hours of rest.

It is said that the only serious cause of highway accidents remaining in Germany today is fatigue. The new highways are nearly accident-proof. On them traffic lanes are separated and grade crossings eliminated, so that collisions of any sort are almost impossible. The sleepy driver, however, is still able to make things dangerous for himself and others.

There is no law about this matter in America, although rules for safe driving include the suggestion that a tired or sleepy driver pull up at the side of the road and take a nap when he feels his attention slipping.

Why Not Try the Speed-Up" System on Congress?

Press Agent's Tip Correct On Policy Changes

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON—Let no judicious newspaperman despise the lowly press agent.

The press agent is prejudiced, of course. His offerings should not be gulped down without minute examination and analysis. Nevertheless, he IS "next" to a lot of inside information, some of which, occasionally, is the real thing.

Now, if news is genuine, who cares where is comes from?—from a press agent or some other source?

A FORECAST

Early in the current business recession I met one of these boys, whom I have known for years, and trust, as much as I dare to trust any press agent.

He assured me that the federal reserve board had seen a recession coming, had investigated and had made a report, which, he said, was before President Roosevelt, and foreshadowed, he asserted, important New Deal concessions to big business, in an effort to counteract the threatened ebb in our prosperity tide.

Communications agencies, he prophesied, were about to be increasingly gently dealt with by the FCC. The railroads, he added, were scheduled to have certain kindnesses extended to them by the ICC. But his particular interest was, and is, in the field of power industry. He explained that our great utilities were anxious to put a billion into improvement of their plants, if the government would "lay off" them sufficiently to permit them to float more securities, to finance their expansion plans. He forecasted that the administration would do so, too.

PROPHECY COMES TRUE

A day or two afterward, while I still was revolving these predictions in my mind, the ICC boosted the railroads' rates 15 per cent.

Thus reassured, I took a chance and, as we reporters express it, "ran" my press agent friend's "story". And, for a fact, he was right. The administration is coming to terms with the utilities.

Six months ago it was advertised that Uncle Sam was on the point of creating seven "little TVS's" to sell nationally-generated hydro-electric power, here, there and everywhere throughout the United States, in competition with privately-generated power.

Today it appears that governmental power has no such administrative thought—perhaps a few dams, for irrigational purposes; that is all.

PLACATED CORPORATIONS

Communication companies are not yet placated, but maybe it is their turn next.

The railroads are partly placated, though still hollering.

The utilities are fairly well satisfied. Their $1,000,000,000 expansion is reasonably well in sight.

NORRIS IS FURIOUS

There is a "bloc" in this country (led by Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska) which rates power governmentalization almost as a religion.

It is furious at what it deems the administration's surrender.

If it is a surrender?

NEXT?

The communications' angle of my press agent informant's series of predictions remains to be verified.

Still, he has done 33.3 per cent well to date.

These so-called newspaper "scoops" are that way—largely accidental.

BULLITT TO GUIDE WINDSORS?

Note, I said United States Ambassador Bill Bullitt, in Paris, has taken charge of the Windsors' visit in the United States.

The Windsor's occupied Bill's pew in a Paris church on Thanksgiving.

If Bill doesn't superintend the Windsors' stay in the United States I'm no judge.

Listen, World!

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

She Never Had a Thought Outside Her Family.

SHE tells you that she's never had a thought outside of her family.

She says it proudly, almost defiantly—as one boasting of a great record and daring you to equal it. And it is obvious that she feels she should be greatly honored and rewarded for "never having a thought outside her family."

But, alas, she isn't being rewarded. That drooping, aggrieved mouth, those tear-dimmed angry eyes, tell the story. Such a common, tragic story with the 40-year-old wife!

"Nobody can say I wasn't a good mother," she cries, in that hopeless, resentful tone that has become her habit.

"I never had an interest or a thought outside my home. From the day I married, I lived just for my husband and the children when they came along. Wore myself out trying to do everything the way they liked—

"There's my husband. He can't bear to wear laundered shirts. So I always did them by hand, though we could have afforded to send to send the washing out. And my girl Lila—she was always a fussy youngster. Things had to be cooked just so before she'd eat them. Same way with Eddie . . .

"My husband says I spoiled Eddie. But I believe in being a real mother—not one of those gadabouts that are always at a club or a tea when their children need them. I never did hold with women, having interests outside their family. I gave up my life for mine. And now what thanks do I get?

"My children treat me as if I were a servant. They thought they knew more than I did before they were out of grammar school. They never confide in me—won't listen to a word of advice. They're always saying I can't understand. Why can't I understand—I'm their mother, ain't I? Sometimes I think they're actually ashamed of me.

"My husband, too. It's years since he asked me to go anywhere with him. He was always nagging me, too, when the youngsters were young, saying it would be good for us all if I'd leave them for a while with a hired woman. But how could I know what would be happening to them? So, of course, I didn't go. Now he doesn't ask me any more. And he's hardly ever at home at nights. When he is, he has his nose in a book . . . never notices me. I suppose I'm not good enough for him now, now that I'm worn out working for him and the children. He'll be chasing around next, with some office girl.

"That's the thanks you get for being a good wife and mother!"

BUT has she been a good wife and mother?

She complains that she is treated as a servant. Hasn't she chosen to live as a servant?

She says that her children think they know more than she does. But don't they? What does she, who boasts that she "has never had an interest outside the home," know of the world in which her husband and her children live, know of the astounding changes which are taking place in that world, know of the complicated problems which they must face?

Why should her children confide in her? Why should her husband seek her companionship? What has she to give them? In all, save physical requirements, they are strangers to her. She cannot even be their moral guide, for her ideas of morality no longer fit the world in which they live.

She never had an interest outside her home.

But was that a proof of devoted love, unselfish sacrifice? Or was it a proof of her own laziness and stupidity? Did she refuse to go to clubs and lectures, refuse to read and think and mingle with her kind because she was "so wrapped up in her family?" Or did she refuse because thinking and reading are hard work . . . and social life challenges one's record and often exposes one's stupidity?

Did she stay at home because that was the dearest place on earth . . . or because she could be the big noise there without criticism or competition? I wonder.

Keeping Step

By LESLIE EICHEL

Roosevelt and His Press Conferences.

Leslie Eichel, regular writer of this column, presents a column today by a Washington correspondent who gives views on recent presidential conferences.

WASHINGTON newspaper correspondents were recently accused by the managing editor of a large paper of "going soft" in the face of the personal charm of President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

The managing editor declared that the correspondents were letting the president off "too easily" when they allowed themselves to be sidetracked from their questioning by the smiling remark, "No comment," from the president

This managing editor had attended one of the president's press conferences on a day when public interest was at white heat on the attitude of the White House toward (a) neutrality in the Far East, (b) business recovery, (c) undistributed profits tax, (d) peace declaration between the CIO and the A. F. of L.

After the conference the newspaper executive went back to his office and wrote a sizzling statement for the office bulletin board, in which the White House correspondents were royally roasted for their manner of questioning the president.

They were told that it was all well and proper to be ultra-courteous to the chief executive, as befits his position, but that it was going too far in courtesy to phrase an embarrassing question in the manner most easily facilitating denial.

The custom had developed in recent months to ask the president whether he had any "comment" on reports in the news, or on questions of public interest. If the chief executive desired to answer, he would open up the subject for discussion with a remark or a statement. If, however, he wished to evade commitment on the subject entirely, he has fallen into the habit of saying "No comment," thus ending that phase of the discussion.

ONE DAY'S QUESTIONS.

On the day of the conference which the managing editor attended, the stenographic notes of the questioning went somewhat as follows:

"Have you any comment, Mr. President, on the latest developments in China, or on the Brussels peace conference?"

—No comment—

"Mr. President, can you say anything about the prospects of permanent peace between the CIO and the A. F. of L., the two rival labor organizations?"

—No comment—

"Mr. President, have you any comment on the current business situation and its prospects for improvement?"

—No comment—

And there was very little news out of that conference.

In the bulletin board statement, the managing editor "dressed down" the correspondents for offering questions in such an easily voidable manner. He suggested that questions should be asked "straight" or not at all. It was suggested that questions should be as follows:

"Mr. President, what, if anything, are you going to do about the present business situation?"

"Mr. President, are the developments in China satisfactory to the American government?"

"What steps are being contemplated . . . ?

VERY PLEASANT RELATIONS.

This incident has served to throw into sharp focus the entire subject matter of President Roosevelt's relations with the press, and the contrast between these relations and those of preceding occupants of the White House.

A clear and understanding analysis of President Roosevelt's contacts with the presss would take volumes. It usually is enough to say that he introduced, not only to the national government, but also to the entire world, the custom of easy informality and complete confidence with press correspondents.

With them, and with them alone, he always is entirely at ease, and almost invariably in good humor. He answers all questions as he pleases, but he restricts nobody's inquiries. Occasionally he may gently reprimand one, or jibe another. But it is always in good spirits.

That is why and how the president has completely won over the Washington press corps, as far as personal relations go. Occasionally, as in the instance described, this amiable relationship may result in a relaxation of vigilance and in a lazy tone of approach. There may be such a thing as too much amiability.

AS IT USED TO BE.

In contrast, however, with earlier presidents, there can scarcely be any but favorable comparison.

President Hoover required that all correspondents hand in their questions, in advance, written out. Those which suited him he answered; others he disregarded. There were no questions "from the floor."

President Coolidge inaugurated the "White House spokesman," the ghostly individual who spoke for the president, without committing the president. Coolidge always was stiff and ill at ease with the newspaper men, never unbending in their presence.

President Harding, a former newspaper publisher himself, actually inaugurated the custom of White House press conferences, and he was extremely informal with the press. There never was, however, such informality and common interchange of ideas as in the five years under the New Deal.

President Roosevelt, moreover, permits correspondents to use all his comments which are classed as "attributable" as coming from him directly without the use of such verbal dodges as the "White House officials," etc.

The president may not, however, be quoted directly, unless a prepared statement is handed out. The form must always be .... "The president said that...."

Appreciation

Editor News-Journal,
Mansfield, Ohio.

The generous co-operation of daily newspapers in the educational campaign covering the Unemployment Census proved exceedingly helpful to the government, as well as to the many persons throughout the land interested, directly and indirectly, in the success of this undertaking.

The voluntary nature of the census made it essential to obtain a wide dissemination of information. The shortness of time, due to the necessity of getting this work out of the way before the Christmas rush in the post office department, made an intensive campaign necessary.

That the educational campaign was effective is indicated by the fact that telegraphic reports from fourteen typical cities show that the unemployment report cards were filled out with such accuracy that only 1% required call backs. To this result daily newspapers made a major contribution.

The editorial co-operation of daily newspapers was likewise an important factor in obtaining public acceptance of the importance to the nation of getting the basic facts of unemployment as a preliminary step in a long range plan of re-employment.

Officially, I acknowledge your part in this great public undertaking, and, personally, I thank you.

McIntyre's New York Day by Day

THOUGHTS while strolling: Prediction—The dancing Ginger Rogers will become one of the movies' leading dramatic actresses. Put a pair of black stitched lemon colored gloves on even Heywood Broun and he's dressed up. Rhymed impossibilities: Clarence Mackay looking tacky.

Wonder what F. P. A. did with his collection of wrongly used whoms? Add actors who never show age: Conway Tearle. Certain first night scene: Enter the Tribune's blue-collared Mr. Watts with orchided mother. Remembered candies: Mullan's Cincinnati taffies and Allegretti chocolates.

The calmest gentleman I know has trained himself to awaken every morning murmuring the Biblical injunction: "Be not afraid!" Kathleen Norris with a bejeweled crown would look at home on any royal throne. James W. Gerard always seems wandering around looking for some one.

Guthrie McClintic sounds like driving over a thank-you-mam. Those pseudo Robert Taylors who poise as swell hotel entrances to give a free look. Bert Lahr suggests a raised umbrella in a close-up talk. They are whispering Tallulah's husband ran away with her flop show.

Note to Alva Johnston: How about one of your frank biographic cameos of Ernest Hemingway? They can have all the modern singers if they'll leave me Bobbie Breen. And—what a thrill for her!—I'm beginning to fall for Garbo. Any day now I may come out for the Marx brothers.

Newspaper photographers have their little trick of handling a snub. Their association gives a ball annually, part of the proceeds going to charity, and they invite biggities of stage and cinema to caper in the show that follows. Most performers respond, realizing the lens lads are dandy publicity avenues. Now and then one doesn't, and when he or she roars in on the Century or sails up the bay there is a great to-do by the camera boys. Clicking away at all sorts of poses, ha ha, to dead boxes. Beatrice Lillie was the most recent target for an enfilade of snapshots that were never snapped.

Few writing men are more versatile and modest than Homer Croy. Even his best seller first book, "West of the Water Tower," was written anonymously. He lived in Paris a year, writing advertising jingles and collecting material for another best seller, "They Had to See Paris." Croy was born on a Missouri farm 20 miles from the birthplace of Dale Carnegie. He was first to encourage Carnegie, when he was catching at the brass ring. One of Croy's particular cronies was the late Chic Sale. They held a reunion in New York for a week each year.

Croy is most original of the letter writers. In fact, he so impressed a group of advertisers years ago with a letter that they sent him on a trip around the world to exploit his idea. His signature is always followed with some self-imposed and often ribald title. And he has a way of startling those addressed. A few hours after arriving in Paris one summer, I received a petit blue from him. It contained a personal from a Plattsburg, Mo., weekly paper about my father, reading: "H. B. McIntyre attended the ball game at St. Joe yesterday." Another time a friend of Croy's arrived in London to receive a milk bill he had neglected in the haste of sailing. There was a sharp note asking him to remit promptly to Croy. How Croy got hold of it nobody knows.

Not many notch a greater happiness than the attitude strikers who give hat check girls $5 bills. This gesture is made with a flourish when a crowd is around. Hundreds are dished out in this fashion. None of which goes to the beasts of the cloak rooms. The concessionaires pay fixed salaries to the girls and they must turn in everything, even up to and including the $5 tip. Anything larger than $5 is split 50-50.

For years I've tried to hike up courage to murmur pleasantly to the hat check girl and walk airily off without leaving a coin. But a feeling of outrageous guilt overwhelms and I shell out a quarter. I cannot even shuck it down to a dime. That is—save a single exception. Receiving my hat and coat and in the manner of plunging into an icy bath, I plinked a dime on the plate. But on way to the exit I stepped on the dangling end of the coat and tried to run up a seam or something. Since then I've been a straight quarter man.

ALL of US

—By MARSHALL MASLIN

A Certain Rich Man

ONE DAY recently in our town, a rich man died.

A rich man so obscure that not one newspaper in town had a photograph of him in its library. Naturally there were a few inches of type in the paper about him. He was a member of a rich "lumbering and shipping family." He was 60. A bachelor. Worth a couple of million dollars. Belonged to a couple of clubs. That's about all. There was "no story." Just a man with money, who had died, and his relatives would get the money—and spend it.

And then the story "broke." William Carson's will was filed and we learned that he was NOT a rich man. "Worth a couple of million dollars." did I write? . . . I should be ashamed, not knowing the man, to dismiss him so carelessly. . . William Carson was worth incalculably more than a couple of million dollars. He was one of the blessed human beings of the world . . . that shy, reserved, gentleman who died last week.

For here was a man who loved his fellows. He liked to talk to them, liked to hear about their troubles and their ambitions, appreciated every good wish, every service—even those he paid for him—never considered that anything was due him. William Carson, the millionaire. And when his will was filed, his city learned that he had given hundreds of thousands of dollars away to scores of men and women . . . to elevator operators, waiters, stewards, clerks, stenographers . . . $1,000 to this Chinese boy, $5,000 to his nurse in his last illness, $10,000 to an office associate, $50,000 to a university, $2,000 to a humble friend and all his debts paid.

Far and wide over the state William Carson had scattered his gifts and done this in such a way that we knew he was not thinking of them as gifts—but as HIS return for kindness, thoughtfulness, friendship and pleasant "Good mornings!" I think I know what was in William Carson's heart as he added name after name to that list—wrote it neatly in his memorandum book, scribbled it on the back of an envelope. He was returning to all these many men and women a little of the pleasures they had given him. . . . And how William Carson, humble and self-effacing and decent, would have hated all this stuff in the papers about a man who was merely paying a few personal debts to a lot of decent human beings!

Timely Editorial

Sunday Racketeering.

No matter how legitimate a business may appear to be, it becomes a racket when it operates illegally. The very fact of law violation, technical or flagrant, puts the burden on the police and on the prosecutor's office. It leaves implications of collusion, even though law enforcement officials simply look the other way. A racket is an attack on the integrity of the law.

On the other hand, no matter how obnoxious a business may appear to be, legality takes it out of the racket class simply because it involves no collusion with public officials.

Many night club and saloon owners of Kansas City have become part-time racketeers. Those who run illegal gambling tables, of course, are in a racket full time. Those who fail to close regularly at 1:30 o'clock and who stay open on Sundays are in a racket at the very hour their business becomes illegal. This should be obvious; but it seems to have been a long time in soaking into a great many Kansas City minds.—Kansas City Star.

Pasadena Patrolmen Ordered to Keep From 'Growing Fat.'

PASADENA— (INS) — Radio-patrolmen of this city may be required to do a "daily dozen" to keep them from growing fat.

The compulsory exercise plan is being considered as a result of Patrolman Charles Painter winning a pension on the grounds he was an able-bodied man while "walking beat," but gained excess fat causing overstrain of his heart when shifted to radio-car duty.

BLOOM IN SNOW

Violets Picked in Woman's Back Yard Despite Winter.

WEST HARTFORD, Conn.— (INS)—The unbelievable has happened. While the weather man went into a huddle with old man winter, snow began falling but Miss Ruby Mitchell began picking violets in her back yard. The astonishing part is they were not shrinking violets for they grew as hardy and proud as the hardiest goldenrod. Pick violets in Connecticut in November! Even the botanists are blushing.

NEED REMINDER

NEW LONDON, Conn.— (INS)— When pranksters stole a valuable bronze sundial from the lawn of a local resident, he waited a reasonable time and then inserted an advertisement in a newspaper offering $1 reward for its return. Next morning the sundial was back in its accustomed place, but the reward went unclaimed.

OPTIMISTS JOIN IN CELEBRATION

Mansfield Club to Mark 'Optimist Week,' Beginning Monday.

The Optimist club of Mansfield will join other Optimist groups throughout United States and Canada in celebrating "Optimist Week," beginning Dec. 6, it was announced today by George Kyle, president.

During that period, Kyle explained, all clubs will simultaneously make a public appeal urging that the problems confronting this country be approached with a spirit of optimism and confidence; and with a willingness to adjust differences through friendly co-operation.

Each club is to hear a recorded message from William J. Tamblyn of Toronto, president of Optimist International, as well as a talk on "Optimism at Work," by a member of a neighboring club.

Louisiana's 48,506 square miles include 3,097 of water and a greater mileage of navigable streams than any other state.

FAIR BOARD TO PICK DIRECTORS

7 Will Be Chosen at Annual Meeting of Agricultural Society Tomorrow.

Seven directors of the Richland County Agricultural society, sponsor of the county fair, will be elected for two-year terms at the annual meeting Saturday afternoon at the courthouse, R. D. Hale, president of the organization, said today.

The seven directors, whose terms expire Jan. 1, are C. S. Henry, Weller township; J. B. Zeigler, Cass township; H. E. Miller, Washington township; C. C. Hammett, Jackson township; E. C. Shafer, Springfield township; C. C. Hout, Mansfield, and H. Zody, R. D. 3, Perrysville.

Hale said he understood all the incumbent directors would be candidates for re-election. Of the 22 directors of the society, nine will serve until Jan. 1, 1940; six until 1939 and the seven to be elected this year until Jan. 1, 1941.

Officers will be named at a meeting soon after the first of the year, Hale said.

H. H. Wolf, Franklin township, is vice president of the fair board; A. W. Strater, Mansfield, treasurer; and Walter W. Shafer, Lexington, secretary.

NEWLYWEDS UPSET COUNTY

HICKMAN, Ky. — (AP) — Unstamped official documaments piled up while Fulton County Clerk C. N. Holland sought frantically for the county seal. After three days of fruitless search, it was returned by a newly married couple who said they had taken it as a souvenir on their wedding day.

CRIPPLED 21-YEAR-OLD GIRL FINDS ROUTE TO HAPPINESS

LOS ANGELES—(NS)—Over a bridge of her own building, legless, one-armed Clover Kerr, pretty 21-year-old daughter of J. T. Kerr, Huntington Park business man, has made her way to happiness.

One afternoon before Christmas she will help 1,000 crippled children of Los Angeles to build their own little bridges at a Christmas party she will give them at a radio station where she talks each day.

At the party each child will receive two packages, she said. One will contain candy and toys and the other, courage.

With beaming eyes Miss Kerr described the party she hopes to give.

"The need of physically handicapped people, especially children," she said, "is to build a bridge from what they were to what they must be. It's easy.

"I would not take anything in the world for what part I've played in helping build these bridges for others."

In Huntington Park high school Miss Kerr was a fine dancer and very popular. Last March 3 she lost the lower part of both legs and her right arm in an automobile accident. So her interest in dancing, except to watch is gone. She has a set of artificial limbs coming up, but she is not excited about them. To her they mean only that she can walk on herself more.

With one hand she types out her radio talks. With her smile and her voice and her insight into human problems she builds her own bridges. And Huntington Park loves her and beats a path to her door.

URGES REVISION

Roper Says Entire U. S. Tax Plan Needs Adjustment.

CHICAGO —(AP)— Overhauling of the entire tax structure was listed as a national need by Secretary of Commerce Daniel C. Roper in an address to the Business Advisory council here.

General revision should be undertaken, he said, to simplify the determination of tax liability, to distribute the tax burden more equitably and to broaden the base of taxation.

The secretary said a larger percentage of the earning population should be included as taxpayers because "some contribution, however small, tends to increase one's interest in public affairs and create a constructive attitude toward one's government."

TOOTH FOOT LONG

Belonged to Dinosaur Which Roamed in Mississippi Valley.

POPLARVILLE, Miss.—(U.P.)—Presentation of a foot-long dinosaur tooth to the Pearl River Junior college museum has started a search for other possible bones of the giant animal that roamed the lower Mississippi Valley thousands of years ago. The tooth was unearthed in Wilkinson County, adjacent to Louisiana.

BUYS RABBITS

State Purchases 25,000 With $15,000 Appropriation.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Purchase of 25,000 cotton-tail rabbits at a cost of $15,250 was announced by State Conservation Commissioner Lawrence Wooddell.

Actual cost of the rabbits, Wooddell said, will be $11,750, but express charges from Missouri brings the total figure to $15,250. The shipment will be delivered in January, and will be distributed on Ohio game lands.

An additional 3,000 rabbits, purchased several months ago, will be delivered this month and placed on 175 game propagation areas which have been established throughout the state. Hunting on these latter areas is prohibited, Wooddell pointed out.

3-POINT WATER PLAN OUTLINED

150-Page Report on Survey of System Recommends Water Department Bonds.

a development will cost $679,000. This plan includes a new reservoir on the north side of the city and general enlargement of mains and feeder lines.

Provides For Tank Tower.

The $225,000 program, a part of the long range development, calls for the construction of a tank tower and booster pump at the Maxwell station and a new high capacity main from Maxwell station to the city's main business district. The pump and tank will increase the water pressure in the Woodland district, it is believed. Pressure there is low because the district is on almost the same elevation as the Maxwell reservoir.

The Gascoigne plan has been sent to the state health department for approval before city council takes any action on it.

The entire water development program, the engineers propose, should be undertaken as a "five-year" plan, to lighten the financing burden.

The report sets up five definite steps in the program, as follows:

Five Steps In Program.

1. New arterial and related distribution mains in high service district, and the elimination of the Hedges pumping station.

2. Creation of a second high service district with local storage and pumping installation.

3. A low service reservoir in North Mansfield with feeder mains and providing for the elimination of the North Main street station.

4. Improvements to the Maxwell station and the development of the well field.

5. Continued improvements in the distribution system.

The first two recommendations are part of the $225,000 plan that has been before council for the past three months, and now awaiting their action on a mode of financing.

Included In WPA Program.

A WPA "sanitation project" totaling $260,862 of which the city is to share $133,156, recently approved by administration officials in Washington, includes part of the water line extensions to be made under this plan. City officials are now waiting release of the project from state WPA headquarters.

Alvin C. Mock, city designing engineer, has said that if this part of the program can proceed at this time that it will result in a savings of $48,700 to the city by using WPA labor.

Gascoigne's report states, "the principal defect of the present water system in city of Mansfield is in distribution. There is a lack of feeder mains of size adequate to support any more than moderate draft. A particular condition of low pressure is found in the Woodland district where the elevations are such as to require local booster pumping at the residence. We do not know of another city where such a condition exists.

"The dependence upon three sources of supply is also a weakness which is largely a matter of cost, but which has led to some uncertainty of developments for the future."

The report states engineers have made a study of the water supply available from Rocky Fork valley, through the Main street and Hedges street pumping station, as well as Charles Mill and Pleasant Hill dam areas, and includes estimates of the cost of obtaining water from each, before arriving at the conclusion that concentration of the source of supply in the Maxwell area would be most certain and cheapest.

Officers to serve during the coming year were elected at a dinner meeting of the Brotherhood of the First Presbyterian church last night in the church parlors.

Those elected were William J. Russel, president; Chester Secrist, fire vice president; James L. Zimmerman, second vice president, and A. D. McKenzie, secretary-treasurer. Russell succeeds Fred E. Elder.

The meeting of the organization was held in conjunction with a father and son banquet sponsored by the brotherhood. About 150 fathers an dtheir sons attended the affair.

DRAWS FINE ON DRIVING CHARGE

Mansfielder Pleads Guilty To Failing To Stop After Accident.

Edward Winner, 312 Second avenue, arraigned in municipal court today for failure to stop after an accident was fined $15 and costs and his drivers' permit suspended for 60 days when he pleaded guilty to the charge.

Winner was arrested at his home last night by state highway patrolman after his car had alleged struck a truck driven by Albert Mills, R. D. 4, Mansfield, on route 13, south of the city.

State patrolman said the accident occurred when Winner attempted to pass another car on a hill and sideswiped the oncoming truck driven by Mills. They said Mills narrowly escaped death when his truck careened from the highway and rolled over several times.

ILLNESS BLAMED FOR LEAP

CLEVELAND —(U.P.)— The suicide of Emery H. Komlos, 51, who jumped from a 17th floor window of the Republic building here yesterday, was attributed to despondency over illness. He was president of the Bond and Share company, and had been interested in many Cleveland business enterprises. He is survived by his wife and two children.

HERE'S HOW YOU CAN EARN MORE

Budget Your Time and Money, Wisehaupt Advises In Last of Three Lectures.

people are living the way they want to live instead of as they can really afford to live."

Stating that a nation as well as an individual can get into trouble by spending more than its income, Wisehaupt criticized the administraton's economic plan as one that will make the individual pay the bill later on.

"I don't say Uncle Sam is paying the debt, I say US and most of us will learn that those letters are small ones and not capitalized, too."

Devoting 15 minutes of his lecture to the merchants of the city, Wisehaupt emphasized the value of advertising as a business builder and added that an attractive, well lighted store window was not far behind as a help to the merchant who would make more money.

"Keep your lights on after the theaters are out at night; that's when the women do their window shopping and take their husbands along to make suggestions for purchases," he said. "The customer is king—he is always your competitor's prospect, and you must interest him and appeal to him to keep business in Mansfield."

As advice to the merchant himself, Wisehaupt recommended membership in at least three good community organizations and a church.

"You make friends when you go places and your friends are your customers. You live in a community now and must depend on others for everything you have."

His economic program for the individual included the paying of debts on a pro-rated basis to keep the credit good and the budgeting of earnings and expenditures each month.

"If you want to be ready for opportunities, you must study and develop your mind," Wisehaupt said. "Read at the library an hour or two a day; it won't cost you anything and it will pay big dividends. The high-salaried executive of today gets paid for brain, not muscle.

"You are right where you want to be tonight and will be in 10 years from now, so why not plan now for what you'd like to be in old age. No man is a failure until he says so himself, and no one else can make a failure of you but yourself. There is more opportunity today than ever before, because men are just beginning to learn how to make use of opportunity."

C. M. Crafton, president of the Mansfield Retail Merchants association, introduced Wisehaupt.

Wisehaupt will begin a course in salesmanship, better business methods and personal efficiency tonight at the Chamber of Commerce rooms. Classes, for which a nominal charge will be made, are to be conducted tonight, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday nights. Enrollments are being received by H. R. Steele and F. C. Drake at the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

Divorced Again, Stokowski Looks Toward Movie Job

PHILADELPHIA —(AP)— Leopold Stokowski, single again after two ventures into marriage, waved his baton today towards an operatic Mickey Mouse.

The 54-year-old Philadelphia orchestra leader, divorced yesterday in Las Vegas, Nev., by his second wife, Evangeline, sat back comfortably on an old rose couch, propped up his patent leather house slippers, and talked of his next movie job.

He was deeply touched by the thought that children everywhere, and his two daughters, now in Mrs. Stokowski's custody, will heart Stokowski conducting the music for another of Mickey Mouse's screen capers.

He refused to discuss the divorce that Mrs. Stokowski obtained on a charge of extreme cruelty, bringing to an end a marriage that began in New York, Jan. 6, 1926.

"I am not going to remary," he said.

Silent club members played euchre at the home of Mrs. Fred Heineking yesterday. Prize winners were Mrs. Harry Packer and Mrs. Oliver Knarr. Mrs. Don Renard and Mrs. Knarr were guests. The next meeting will be a Christmas party Dec. 16 at the home of Mrs. Lester McQuillen, Greenwood avenue.

STATE NOTES 'SAVE' SCHOOLS

has had to spend $1,867 for interest on previous note issues from the state, Dr. Bristor revealed. Cash to retire the notes was received only this week.

Ohio schools this year will pay nearly $850,000 in interest, which they would have saved if the state was able to meet the interest on the notes, since the state was unable to distribute cash. The Mansfield city board reuirements of the state foundation program. The interest rate in Mansfield has been three per cent on past notes, Bristor said.

Meanwhile the city schools can expect only a small part of the county personal tax distribution to be made about the middle of January and possibly an advance against the real estate tax collection to begin about the same time, Deputy Auditor Arthur S. Peck pointed out.

"Provided the real estate tax collection begins at a reasonable time, the schools may be able to obtain an advance by Feb. 1," Beck said. Figures on the January distribution of personal taxes for the schools were not available today.

The county's rural schools are in better condition, Supt. Boyd Robinson explained, with only about half of them expected to use their authority to borrow.

Bellville schools received $9,595 in notes in today's distribution, more than any other county district. Butler schools got $8,029 and Madison township, $7,882.

Shelby schools, in a special district, were authorized to borrow $12,935. Other cities in this area received the following amounts: Galion, $13,677; Bucyrus, $13,179; Crestline, $7,254, and Ashland, $18,687.

DAVEY RECEIVES GIRL'S OFFER TO WED ANY OHIOAN FOR $500

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)—A "beautiful young girl," white, 20 years old, American, refined and respectable man in Ohio for $500, she informed Governor Davey today.

The girl who signed her name Maureen Donnelle gave a general delivery address at Cumberland, Maryland.

The purpose of her offer is to help children in her family to have a good Christmas and to finance an operation for her mother, she wrote.

"I can't face the thought of asking help of local charities," she wrote.

"My description is: height, 5 feet 3 inches; weight, 108 pounds. I have medium dark hair, grey eyes., fair complexion, and not at all bad looking. I have been told that I resemble the late Jean Harlow, and I really believe I do, except that my hair is dark.

"I might add that I am not a bad cook and housekeeper," she wrote.

Wray Bevins, secretary of the governor, to whom the letter was referred, said he didn't have any plan of procedure on the request.

The letter, it was understood, was addressed to the governors of four states.

TIFFIN —(U.P.)— Gerald Bickhart, 24, of Bellevue, died in Mercy hospital here today, several hours after his chest was crushed and his lungs punctured when an automobile plunged into a mill race near here. Ruth Lucius, 16, Tiffin, also a passenger in the car, was injured. Four other Tiffin and Bellevue young persons in the car were unhurt.

the state parole board, and expected his testimony to consume the remainder of the day.

Duffy said convening of the grand jury at Canton, originally scheduled for Dec. 7, was postponed "because of developments in Columbus."

Naylor is a native of Stark county and the attorney general hoped to have him testify there after he refused previously to testify here unless granted immunity. The request eventually was granted and the "star witness" of the investigation spent three hours on the witness stand Wednesday.

Naylor has been under guard, apparently at his own request, and spent yesterday in an anteroom outside the grand jury chamber. He was used by the attorney general to "identify" some of the Ohio penitentiary prisoners who testified, but Duffy declined to say in what connection.

The inquiry, opened by the grand jury Nov. 22, covers the period since 1921 when the parole board was established and is likely to continue into the new year, the attorney general said.

KOLB HAS GOOD AND BAD NEWS

Treasurer Says Tax Collection to Be Delayed; Warns Week Left For Delinquents.

County Treasurer John E. Kolb had both good and bad news today for Richland county property owners.

A delay in the opening of the first-half real estate tax books for next year, he said, would provide a "relief period" for taxpayers over the Christmas holidays. The tax collection, he believes, will start about Jan. 15.

But there was unpleasant news in his warning that just a week remains in which delinquent taxes may be paid in installments and with the abatement of penalties and interest under provisions of the Whittmore act.

The act, which expires Dec. 10, enables taxpayers who are more than a year in arrears in their payments to avoid foreclosure action by arranging to pay on the "easy payment" plan. It also frees the property holder of the extra burden of penalties and interest due on taxes owed prior to 1936, Kolb pointed out.

Delinquent taxes on approximately 2,500 parcels of property in the county are being retired at present under the partial payment plan, he said. Owners of 2,400 other parcels on which taxes are past due have made no provisions to pay and face foreclosure suits.

The finance department of the United States army disburses all funds appropriated for national defense.

Italian Attack on 'Big Three' Stirs Fresh Tension

DUCE'S PAPER HITS 'INSULTS' FROM POWERS

Accuses U. S., Britain, France of Planning 'Strangulation' of 'Have Not' Nations.

(By The AP Feature Service)

An Italian press attack on the "big three" democracies—Britain, France and the United States—and British and French moves toward increased military strength were new factors today in the troubled search for European security.

A bitter editorial in Il Popolo D'Italia, Premier Mussolini's Milan newspaper, accused the three democracies of planning an "economic strangulation" of "have not" nations—presumably including Italy, Germany and Japan.

Slams Negotiations.

The attack, apparently the work of Mussolini himself, seemed directed primarily at pending negotiations between Britain and the United States for a reciprocal trade agreement.

The editorial was studded with such phases as "this democratic noose" . . . "threat of economic war, blockade and starvation" "profound cowardliness" . . . and "insulting threats."

To the threat of economic pressure, Il Popolo D'Italia said, "peoples worthy of the name are constrained to respond in the only way possible with timely and wholehearted preparation of spirit and arms."

With French Foreign Minister Yvon Delbos on a 17-day tour of the Polish, Czechoslovakian, Rumanian and Yugoslavian capitals bearing a decision by France and Britain not to give Germany "a free hand" in Central Europe, there were noteworthy developments in Paris and London regarding war preparedness.

Britain was draetically streamlining her army organization, placing younger men at the top to keep step with "modern" developments of warfare. Three of the four members of the powerful army council resigned and two of them were replaced with younger men.

Seeks To End Treaty.

In Paris, defense Minister Edouard Daladier disclosed France was seeking to nullify that section of the Versailles treaty which forbids France to fortify her Swiss frontier.

The defense minister's disclosure was a response to a declaration by Deputy Rene Burtin that there was "grave menace" of a German attack on France across the northern tip of Switzerland on a flank of the French Maginot line of steel and concrete fortifications.

The Versailles treaty, at the request of Switzerland, "forever" prohibited fortification of the Franco Swiss frontier.

Delbos, seeking to solidify French alliances with Poland and had a cordial 15-minute chat with German Foreign Minister Konstantin Von Neurath. They talk- at the station in the presence of French Ambassador Andre Francois-Poncet.

Madison Set For Rush Tomorrow at First "Can" Show

Every employee of the Madison theater will turn out tomorrow morning to see that the youngsters who attend the first charity "can matinee" have a good time and get their "bean's worth."

Because Laurel and Hardy, film funny men, who are away up there in the high salaried bracket, are going to caper across the Madison theater screen tomorrow for canned beans, tomatoes, peaches, plums—anything that Johnnie and Mary can take from their mother's fruit cellar. And there'll be a lot of youngsters there.

The canned food will serve as entree to the theater and after the show starts will be taken in trucks to the Salvation Army home where it will be kept until the day before Christmas when it will be given out in the Christmas baskets.

There will be no "overhead," as the theater and films are donated by Warner Brothers, the projectionists and stage employes, the ushers and cleaners, give their time as contributions to the Community Christmas Fund.

Although the show is arranged primarily for youngsters anyone may attend it who contributes a can of food for the Christmas baskets. It will be a two hour program of screen fun, starting promptly at 9:30 a. m.

Up and Down THE STREET

Friends of Vern G. Ritchey of near Mansfield and Robert Landis of Nova are to get a chance to apply their teeth on pieces of juicy deer steak in a few days. Ritchey and Landis returned yesterday from a hunting trip to Warren county, Pennsylvania, with an 8-point buck apiece, both weighing over 150 pounds. Deer is plentiful in Pennsylvania this year, they report.

J. D. McCullough of Bellville has heard of it raining cats and dogs, but he got a big surprise a couple of days ago when a rabbit fell at his feet while he was walking on his farm. The animal was dropped from the claws of a large hawk sailing overhead which apparently had found the burden too much. McCullough thinks maybe hunters ought to begin the conservation of game by shooting the hawks, on which the season is always open.

Mansfield's holiday decorations were thrown a bouquet last night by Howard J. Wisehaupt, lecturer and personality expert, in his talk at Senior high school. The city's Christmas dress, which this week was enhanced by four huge imitation candles on the posts of the Central park fountain, was described by Wisehaupt as "the best I have seen anywhere this year." Pointing out that the decorations boost the holiday spirit, he added, "I'm already beginning to feel like Santa Claus."

H. M. Wells, formerly of Mansfield, and now operating a filling station at Salt Springs, Fla., writes to tell of a daring landing made by an airplane pilot on the highway right in front of his station. The plane developed motor trouble, Walls relates, but the pilot managed to bring the ship down without touching either the high tension wires on one side of the road or the telephone wires on the other. He fixed the trouble and with another exhibition of flying skill took off again, once more avoiding the wires that would have meant a crash if he had touched them with his wing tips.

JAPAN YIELDS TO U. S. MARINES

Troops Halted In Invasion of American Defense Area After Bomb Explodes.

line. Sentries, poising bayonetted rifles, halted them. Both got out and demanded to see the commanding officer. The sentry officer refused to call him. There were hot words.

The sentry officer finally complied, but when the American officers demanded to be escorted to the commander, he refused flatly. Boone and his adversary exchanged more heated words and the escort was provided. A half hour later they returned, and Japanese officers began giving the command to withdraw.

What passed between the marines and the Japanese commanders was not known, but Price was heard to exclaim:

"You are practically invading the United States defense sector. You must withdraw immediately."

The Japanese troops were definitely within the American defense zone when the marine commander took action. They had seized an area that included the foreign Y. M. C. A., the Park hotel, and an apartment house beyond the park road and all within the sector.

The strong stand apparently turned the tide. As night began the Japanese had contracted their lines in the adjoining sector of the white Russian volunteers, until they extended from Yuyaching road west to the Tientsin road north to Shansi road east to the Kiukiang road and south to Yuyaching road.

A spokesman for the Japanese embassy announced this cordon would be withdrawn as soon as a joint investigation of the grenade throwing by the Japanese army and the Shanghai municipal council, an international body, had been completed.

"The Japanese authorities have no intention of taking undue advantage of the incident," he said.

DAVEY BACKS UP ON LIBRARY VETOES, REQUESTS FUNDS NOW

COLUMBUS —(U.P.)— Two of the four state universities which lost their entire library book appropriations for 1938 through Governor Davey's vetoes last July will get the money after all if the legislature passes the present supplementary appropriation bill.

The new bill, which has the governor's backing, replaces these items, amounting to $10,000 for Miami university and $9,000 for Ohio university.

Library book appropriations of $3,500 for Bowling Green State university and $14,000 for Kent State university, stricken out by the governor in July, are still missing in the new bill. The governor in his vetoes did not disturb the book funds allotted to Wilberforce and Ohio State.

For Ohio university, the pending bill indicates, Governor Davey now favors total additional appropriations of $74,000—exactly the amount he vetoed from its allowances in the July measure.

Ohio State university, which lost $56,000 by the vetoes, will get four times that amount—$226,840—if the supplementary bill is passed.

For Bowling Green, the total of $40,000 recommended in the new bill would more than replace the $30,500 vetoed in July.

Kent, loser of $26,000 by the July vetoes, is down in the new bill for $735,000 of which $650,000 would pay for a new science building and $85,000 would finance WPA projects.

Miami, in whose appropriations the governor vetoed $20,000, is listed now for supplementary grants of $42,500.

No Wilberforce items were vetoed in the July bill, and an additional appropriation of $30,000 for WPA improvements there is carried in the new proposal.

DAVEY PROGRAM WON'T SUCCEED, YODER ASSERTS

Supplemental Appropriations 'Not Needed,' Head of Senate Economy Bloc Says.

COLUMBUS — (AP)—Sounds of whetting on the senate grindstone definitely were more audible today the leader of the "hatchet men" declared that Gov. Martin L. Davey s $2,381,333 supplemental budget never would pass the senate.

"We are going to have a financial showdown," said Lieut. Gov. Paul P. Yoder, head of the bloc that wrecked the previous administration budget.

He said a supplemental budget "is not needed," except for three departments, and asserted that he "doubted" if Governor Davey's plan to make unemployment insurance benefits available Jan. 1, instead of one year later, by amending the state law, could be enacted.

Holds Funds Available.

Yoder did not elaborate on the insurance law amendment but said a survey he had made revealed the state tax commission had more than $126,340 available for the last six weeks of this year which could have been used for salaries of employes who have been laid off.

He termed the layoffs a "political gesture" and said that the Davey administration proposed to hire new employes as replacements later.

The lieutenant governor said the senate would make a survey of financial operations of the state liquor department, as well as those for which the governor sought additional funds. The liquor department was not included in the Davey request.

The three departments for which Yoder said additional money probably would be needed were the welfare department, the national guard and the state emergency board. He estimated about $600,000 would cover their needs.

Both houses were in adjournment today, the house until next Monday and the senate until such time as the house acts on a relief program. Skeleton sessions were scheduled for the interim.

The Great Game of Politics

—By FRANK R. KENT

MR. JOHN L. LEWIS, the Committee for Industrial Organization leader, talks a great deal and not always tolerantly. Usually he denounces industry. That is a large part of his business. The other day, however, he included in his condemnation, politics. Neither industrialists nor statesmen, he said, had thought this question of unemployment through.

There is certainly some basis for that charge. So far from a solution having been found for the problem, concededly the most vital we have, it has increased in gravity and swollen in size. With the country gripped in another depression, the situation concerning the jobless is menacingly accentuated. In October 100,000 men were laid off; in November 400,000; by February, the United States News conservatively estimates the total unemployed will exceed 9,000,000, an increase since September of over two million. These figures, compiled by the Committee of Economic Security, are as reliable as can be had. No one thinks this government census recently taken will produce anything better or as good.

FOR ONE THING, the returns already tabulated are admittedly "unsatisfactory." It is known now that a great many unemployed did not bother to fill out and return the complicated card; and that a great many that were filled and returned gave misleading information. For another thing, even if the returns had been complete and accurate, early in November when the census was taken, they clearly would not reflect the true situation late in January when the results will be announced. In brief, this widely ballyhooed count of the jobless, costing $5,000,000 and forced on the administration by the demand for facts, might better not have been taken. Which isn't the fault of Mr. Biggers, who did as good [redacted] to two hard facts—first, that a voluntary census was certain to fail anyhow; second, that the rate at which men are losing jobs would put any census out of date in two months.

WITHOUT ATTEMPTING to give figures, what seems perfectly clear is that in a short time this "business recession" will push unemployment back to the 1936 peak, where it took more than $2,000,000,0000 to handle the situation. Assuredly Mr. Lewis is justified in saying that the problem has not been solved. Solved—it hasn't been touched. It hardly has been approached. It never really has been faced. But whose fault it is. It is true it is now an appalling proposition; that its size, seriousness and cost are not easy to exaggerate. Yet, there are certain simple facts which those like Mr. Lewis in the labor field, and Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Hopkins in the political field, seem to ignore when they discuss it.

MR. LEWIS complains that no one has thought of the problem through, but it isn't necessary to think very deeply to know these things.

First, that the one possible way to diminish unemployment is to provide jobs for the jobless.

Second, that the only place where jobs can be found is in private industry.

Third, that private industry cannot provide jobs unless it can make a profit. When the point is reached where it cannot make a profit it firsts curtails production, cuts its pay roll and as a last step, goes out of business.

ALL OF WHICH is axiomatic, trite and obvious, accepted by everyone who belives in the profit system—and that includes Mr. Roosevelt, Mr. Hopkins and Mr. Lewis. Thus, to even the least profound it must be clear that unemployment becomes acute when business is sick, and relatively disappears when it is well. Obviously, then, the first concern of both labor leaders and politicians should be to keep business healthy. Obviously, when, as now, it languishes, the restoration of its health is of overshadowing importance and must have the right of way.

NOTHING ELSE make sense, in no other way can unemployment [redacted] shortened, the underprivileged fattened, a better distribution of wealth arranged, most of the New Deal "objectives" achieved. It is much too clear to dispute. Yet with the roll of jobless increasing daily and business flat on its belly, because of taxation laws which prevent expansion and a governmental hostility which paralyzes enterprise, do we find a concentrated and determined effort upon the part of labor leaders and statesmen to get it up on its feet? We do not. Instead, we find them insisting upon further regulatory and restrictive measures ahead of relief. Instead the labor leader talks through his hat about the failure of industrialists and politicians, to "think things through" while the president, and his chief adviser on the subject of unemployment, consider the state of the nation on a nine days fishing trip in Florida waters—leaving behind them, with its hands tied by White House orders, a congress that really wanted to do something for business.

Hollywood Speaks—

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—New peril for film troupes in African jungles is reported by Otto Brower, director of an expedition into the Tanganyiki country for the film "Stanley and Livingstone."

"The native men buy and sell wives at a standard price of 99 goats or 10 cows for each woman," Brower related on his return. "Each man saves up his cows and goats until he gets enough to buy another wife."

So when the movie people, far from civilization, wanted to buy meat—for their own needs and to pay 2,500 natives who demanded food rather than money for "extra" work—they couldn't get it. Brower finally sent native runners with an appeal to the nearest British government outpost, got cattle commandeered, and had the wife-hoarders reimbursed with cash and the promise to redeem the money in cattle later....

Cesar Romero tells it on himself: After a recent preview he was surrounded by autograph hunters. Fritz Feld, the character actor ("I Met Him In Paris," "True Confession," "The Yellow Nightingale"), has been trying to become a director for 20 years. Once Lubitsch, when managing director of production at Paramount, made Feld his editorial assistant. Feld took the job on condition he would be allowed to direct at the first opportunity, Lubitsch agreeing if Feld would stop acting long enough to be considered a directing possibility. But Lubitsch married, honeymooned in Europe, and during his absence Feld was prevailed upon by Wesley Ruggles to take the Colbert film role. Since then it's been one acting assignment after another—but some day, he still insists, he will be a director....

—Advice—

Make It Up Adviser Suggests

By VIRGINIA LEE

TEXAS GIRL has quarreled with her boy friend because while she was away from home he drank and went out with other girls—at least that is what she heard, or her friends told her. So she wrote to him that she never wanted to have anything to do with him again, and he took her at her word.

"Day and night I keep thinking about him," she writes, "and it seems that we will never make up. Please tell me what to do as soon as possible, for I cannot stand it any longer."

Many, many people, much older and more experienced than you, make themselves miserable after a quarrel because they are "too proud" to make the first move toward reconciliation, Texas Girl.

Nothing, in my estimation, is so important as friends and loved ones. Pride means nothing—or should mean nothing—if it prevents us from saying "I'm sorry" when we have a quarrel with them. People who can go through years, or even days or hours, without speaking when they have quarreled are conundrums to me, and conundrums I don't want to solve.

Do you remember the story of the husband and wife who hadn't spoken for years and years, although they lived in the same house and ate at the same table? It was in the papers a short time ago. At last the wife insisted upon a divorce, but still they lived in the same house. One morning the wife prepared breakfast but the husband didn't come down to eat it, and when she went upstairs to look for him she found his body hanging in a closet.

Now that husband may have been very much to blame for the unhappiness of that home, but I wonder what the wife's thoughts were when she looked at his dead face. Was she glad? Or did she think that with all his faults he was a human being, and if she had said, "I'm sorry for my part in this unhappy quarrel," and "let's start all over again," he would have agreed and the tragedy would never have happened?

I don't think a boy who drinks is a good companion or mate for any girl, Texas Girl, but maybe that, too, is a yarn and your boy friend doesn't—at least not to excess. And anyhow, if you feel you went too far in saying that you didn't want to have anything to do with him, why not write, wire or phone and say so. Ask him to come to see you and talk it over. Maybe he is as unhappy as you are. If he doesn't come, you know that he doesn't care for you as you do for him. That will be hard, but at least you will know you have done your part.

You are too young to marry, but the waiting time won't seem long if you are having a happy time in his company.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

Mother Graham's hands were twisting nervously as she put her question to Dicky, and her tremulous voice also betrayed the anxiety which was hers because of the real or fancied danger to Mary and Noel from Jack Leslie.

His face was very tender as he crossed over to her and, bending, kissed her cheek.

"The man is on the job," he said. "I myself stationed him down the road. And he is one of the best trailers in the world, as well as being a 'bruiser' without compare. I don't think he's necessary, except to give you some peace of mind, but he's there. You can be assured 'nobody or nothing,' as Katie puts it, can came near enough to Mary and Noel to be dangerous."

She brought a sign from the soles of her shoes, apparently.

"You are a good son, Richard," she said, "to humor an old woman. But I can't help feeling that it isn't just a whim on my part, but an intuition that I can't afford to ignore."

Listens for Phone.

"Well were sure not ignoring it," he retorted, and then he and I tacitly drew the conversation away from Mary and Noel to the one topic of conversation which is of never-failing interest to her—the doings of her three youngest grandchildren.

I tried valiantly to keep up my end of the conversation, but I found myself listening for the telephone. Was Jim having more trouble than he expected in putting the car out of commission? I knew that he could do nothing when there were other travelers on the road, and conjured up a dozen things which might have prevented him from accomplishing what an old-time novelist would surely have described as "his fell purpose."

When at last the telephone sounded, I was on my feet before Dicky could rise.

"I' mnearest. I'll answer it," I told him, and sped to the instrument in the lower hall. Jim's voice, somewhat strained, came over the receiver.

"Who is this, Mis' Graham? Gee!"

The exclamation was one of relief, and I guessed that he had been afraid someone else would answer the telephone.

"Yes, Jim?" I said in clear, loud tones which I knew would reach to the veranda. "Is there anything wrong?"

Clutch Damaged.

"I'll say there's something wrong," he said with a rush of rapid staccato words. "This clutch has gone completely flooey. I'm afraid it's a new clutch job. I've tried everything I know, and then I walked about a quarter of a mile to this telephone. What do you want me to do?"

"Hold the line, first of all," I directed him. "I'll ask Mr. Graham what he thinks about it."

I walked back to the veranda, and relayed Jim's story in as few words as possible.

"He wants to know what to do."

"Do!" Dicky exploded. "There's only one thing to do—have him call the garage and get them to tow him in. I'll get in the car and run down there right away to give the thing the once over and bring Jim back with me. But if it's a clutch job, it will mean 24 hours out here. Old Phil Veritzen will skin Noel alive and hang him up in chains if he stays down here that long."

His mother clapped her hands, and we gazed at her in amazement.

"No, I haven't gone out of my mind," she said with a reluctant grin, "and I'm not applauding possible punishment for Noel. But I can't help thinking how marvelous that this accident should have happened just now instead of on the way down. It will give those children another whole day with each other."

"Yes, Old Man Coincidence was certainly working overtime today," Dicky said dryly, and something in his tone made me look up quickly at him. Had his keen perceptions guessed the truth?

While she is trying to keep her husband from going high-hat, her best friend tries to steal him. Robert Benchley and Helen Vinson heads the supporting cast.

Rival News Hawks Battle.

The amazing things that happen when rival foreign correspondents battle each other and mutual enemies for the news, forms the plot of "Fit For A King." Joe E. Brown's latest laugh hit. Brown and Paul Kelly are cast as rival reporters seeking to cover an intriguing political plot in a mythical European kingdom. Kelly, wise to all the tricks, beats the inexperienced Brown at first, but when Joe learns the ropes, the tables are turned. Helen Mack portrays the princess, raised in America, who goes back to claim the throne. Others in the cast of the film opening at the Madison theater today are Harry Davenport and Russell Hicks.

'The Adventurous Blonde.'

The adventures of a young newspaper woman who outsmarts not only rival reporters but the police as well in solving a murder mystery, makes up the plot of "The Adventurous Blonde," opening at the Majestic theater today. Glenda Farrell plays the part of the newspaperwoman, while Barton MacLane, Anne Nagel, Tom Kennedy and George E. Stone head the supporting cast. The second picture on the double feature program is a western, "Frontier Town," starring Tex Ritter, with Ann Evers and Snub Pollard also in the cast.

'Doomed at Sundown.'

"Doomed at Sundown," the eighth of a series of Bob Steele westerns, opens at the Ritz theater today with Lorraine Hayes and Warner Richmond in the feature roles. Steele is cast as the son of a murdered sheriff who vows vengeance on his father's killer. In the enemies' camp he rescues a young girl and at the same time locates his father's assassin. The balance of the film deals with the capture of the outlaw. Ramon Novarro in "The Sheik Steps Out,' with Lola Lane completes the twin-bill.

My Neighbor Says:

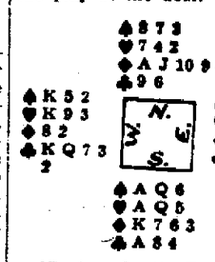
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

COUNTING FIVE CARDS

WATCHING the fall of the smallest cards can furnish the key to the play of the big cards. If a conservative player, who leads the fourth best of his longest suit against no trump, later discards or follows with the only remaining smaller card of the suit, you know he has only five of it. This knowledge can tell you sometimes exactly what to do in completing the play of the deal.



(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

South arrived at a contract of 3-No Trumps on this deal, after opening with one. His partner responding with 2-Diamonds and he jumping to 3-No Trumps.

The club 3 was West's opening lead and South ducked one round. He went in on the second lead, realizing that any finesse would have to be to West. The diamond suit broke, so that he now had cashed one club and five diamonds and had only two other tricks in sight with his two aces. West had retained his three setup clubs and a guard for his heart K, but blanked his spade K. The declarer now finessed a spade and West cashed his remaining clubs.

When it was pointed out to South that by throwing West in with a club he could have made his game, he argued that West might have had six clubs, whereas the finesse might have worked. However, had he remembered that the original lead was the club 3 and that on the return of the suit West dropped the 2, it would have been quite evident to him that the original holding was one of five cards.

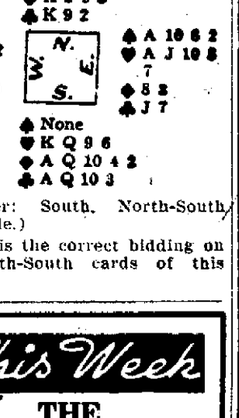
Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

What is the correct bidding on the North-South cards of this deal?

EIGHT CASES ON JURY'S DOCKET FOR NEXT WEEK

Five Personal Damage Suits, Action to Break Will to Be Heard In County Court.

Eight cases, including five personal damage suits and an action to break a will, are scheduled for hearing next week by the Richland county petit jury which convenes Monday after a two weeks' recess.

The week's calendar, set up by C. A. McKinley, assignment clerk, calls for the hearing of two suits Monday, Thursday and Friday and one each on Tuesday and Wednesday. The possibility that one or more of the cases will be settled before trial date may result in rearrangement of the schedule, however, McKinley said.

The list of cases and attorneys for both plaintiff and defendant follow:

Monday—Fred G. Howarth vs. George Reichert, action to participate in state industrial compensation fund for injuries allegedly received while employed by defendant, Attys. Lewis Brucker and C. J. OREGON ONCE FAVORITE ABODE OF MASTODONS, SCIENCE SAYS

PORTLAND, Ore.—(INS)—Mastodon-remains were discovered at opposite ends of Oregon recently, giving strength to the belief that this state once was the favorite abode of many prehistoric monsters.

Of the two discoveries, one was believed to be the remains of a mastodon that lived in comparitively modern times—that is, probably no more than twenty thousand years ago. The other find was that a real old-timer who lived more than a million years ago.

The "newer" remains included several teeth and parts of a mastodon skeleton, which were unearthed by Charles Roberts near Tualatin, a short distance from Portland in the northernmost section of Oregon. A damp and marshy onion field yielded the discovery.

Dr. H. C. Dake, paleontology student here, expressed the belief the remains were those of a mastodon which was forced southward by the greatest glacial ice movement which extended almost to Oregon. Most of the teeth, as well as several ribs and a tusk were found to be in good condition, despite the fact they had not undergone petrification.

The Lakeview find in the southernmost part of the state was that of several teeth attached to a section of a jawbone. The discovery was in one piece, and had been petrified by what scientists estimated was at least a million years interment.

THE STATE vs. ELNA JEPSON

By NANCY BARR MAVITY

(Copyright 1937)

CHAPTER XXX.

"The prosecution have proved their circumstantial case in so far as was possible on the facts accessible to them." Elna had leaped to her feet. "Against all this I give you only one thing: the word of Elna Jepson. On my word of honor"—her voice was deep as a bell as she repeated the words—"on my word of honor I did not kill Holly Ainsworth."

She dropped in her chair. Almost immediately she saw Curtis, gazing at her with shining eyes of pride. Her eyes smiled back, trying to tell him that his faith had made courage easy.

"Any cross-examination?" the judge asked.

"Your honor's patience just a moment." Daniels resumed his whispering with his assistant.

"She's thrown us out on a limb, he leaned low, "don't you see?" She will answer that she has answered any cross-examination we may give. And that mysterious secret of honor. I don't believe we'd get it out of her by any means. What if she chose to tell it herself and knocked our case into a cocked hat when we opened up on it? If she's trying a trap on us, we'd better not fall in. Then it also might be some twisted truth we don't know and can't find out.

Daniels rose to his feet. "The prosecution stands on its case. No cross-examination, your honor," he said, trying hard to look as if he considered the verdict already settled. "The prosecution rests."

No one had ever suspected McClung of the dramatic. But now he rose with unexpected dignity.

"The defense rests," he said. "On the honor of Elna Jepson."

No one except the naive spectators listened to the final arguments. James ran into Graham, who grabbed his arm. "Tell me," said Curtis. "You've been here all the time. I didn't expect her to take it like that!"

James in turn seized the arm of Graham. "There may be worse fools than I, and you rate among them. That was the finest piece of strategy I ever saw. Left to her own story, easily torn to pieces bit by bit by the district attorney, she hadn't a chance. She knew it. She had made up her mind to give it all up, I think, when the judge called the noon recess a few minutes early. There's too much wrong with that story of hers She didn't want to tell it as a witness. I've a hunch she was ready, that noon, to take the rap and be done with it. We all saw that it was the red hat that inspired the grand new idea."

"Funny how people depend on symbols," Graham mused. "I only meant it to cheer her on a bit; to get a message to her that would carry more influence than a personal note."

"You engineered that story?" James exclaimed.

"It wasn't that exactly," Graham answered modestly. "I know you're all smarter at this game than I But I had to try"

"Try? That love letter to Elna which you wangled onto every front page—oh, yes, you did, for I know smart newspaper work when I see it—gave her the spirit she needed—the spirit to stand up and give that jury the 'honor of Elna Jepson' By the way, do you know Roger Ainsworth?"

"Slightly," Graham answered.

"Notice him during the trial? He's jittery and thin and has taken to drink. He came in and slid out just when Elna said that the story she admitted was phony must still stand on a point of honor. You can help Elna now."

"Am I supposed to break what Elna counted a point of honor?"

Graham's voice was sharp. "She's used to having her decisions obeyed."

"Even if I saw her look at him with utter contempt, deeper than hatred, as he left?"

"On the word of a newspaperman?" Curtis grinned, and James knew he had won.

"I don't know what this will do unless it is pulled on a new trial. But I'd like to have her straight with the world. We're on our way to start getting Ainsworth drunk, so drunk he'll talk."

The two final prosecution arguments had been mainly recapitulation Daniels had called Elna a "self-confessed slayer by her own words granting the case against her."

For virtually the first time McClung rose of his own accord. "I dislike to interrupt the counsel, but if your honor will consult the record, he will find that this is precisely the opposite of what the defendant said."

"The last sentence of the opposing counsel must be stricken out as contrary to the record," Judge Ashton ruled Daniels reddened. The ruling was a distinct point for the defendant. After that he dared not ask for the death penalty.

When McClung had asked Elna for suggestions as to his final argument, she had only turned to him with her lifted eyes and said, "I've made things hard for you by messing them up. Now it's your turn to pull my chestnuts out of the fire if you can. Say what you like"

Somehow, the inexplicable romanticism of Elna, battering against the world, enveloped him. "Ladies and gentlemen of the jury," he said, "I have heard many great words, but never greater than those of Elna Jepson from the witness stand. I, too, give you the honor of a girl who risked her life for it. She refused, against every insistence, to tell me, her attorney, more than she told you. But I, too, give you her word in her integrity—the word of Elna Jepson against the world."

The arguments ended, the door was about to be closed for the judge's instructions, when no one could leave or enter. Elna suddenly turned, scanned the press rows quickly. She caught sight of James rushing up the steps. She had written a few notes, for she had noticed James and Curtis trotting off together toward the beerhouse.

She handed the paper to Larry, the jail attendant. "Catch the reporter, James, with this before the door closes. It's important."

James thrust his hand out for the note just as the door swung closed The other reporters had stampeded from the courtroom. James slipped unnoticed from the group and picked a telegraph motorcycle boy around the corner

"Get this to Deak, All American Alliance office. Tell him James will be phoning."

So that the boys did not run in on him, he went to an apartment house to telephone. "Deak? James speaking. Can you run off a photostat immediately—for your local extra if possible—and rush to head office? Original is on way by motorcycle—and have a boy come up to my hotel He can have a dupe on my story east. It won't be long Have your local assistant wire A. A. A. what time jury goes out. I'll be busy, but I'll be back when jury comes in or long before. So long"

Elna was sitting alone in her jail cell, figuring her jurors again and again, as Roger had taught her Those two heavy-nosed men would fight for the foremanship. Whichever lost would oppose the other. That meant they would be out a long time. The big-bosomed woman had wept several times—but she might be easy-going and unable to stand against a strong prosecution ballot. The young honeymoon girl would be with her—she had almost clapped her hands at the Curtis episode in court She was tired of figuring them back and forth After all, it depended on what they thought of her own testimony. They might consider it a "practical admission of guilt."

"Mr Jamieson," she called down the stairs "Get me all those howling extras in the courtyard. It was kind of you to wait for me."

"Little lady," said the jailer, "this is the hardest time of all—I've seen it often. And about the jurors. We all make a chart as to how we think they'll vote The press boys do it, and any lawyers hanging around. And in all these years not one of those charts come out one hundred per cent right. Nearest I ever knew was a man named Ainsworth."

Elna seized her scribbled chart and threw it into the wastebasket. She was tired, very tired, of hearing praises of the brilliancy of Roger.

Soon he thrust an armload of papers on Elna's bed. She picked up what she called "Mr Jamieson's paper" and dropped back on the pillow of the cot as she saw her own signature in replica at the bottom of a photostatic copy of the entire sheet of her notes to James. AS SEEN BY ELNA was blazoned across the top.

She glanced down the words, informal, not at all like a story, beginning: "Notes on arguments in case you need them—Daniels played same song from start to finish He gave both prosecution arguments—the other one must be an office boy or something. You know substance of prosecution, and can use any part of it and be right. You know how they love to repeat everything over and over. Defendant a bit pleased when judge turned down (or whatever you call it) Daniels when he tried to make out my testimony was self-confession McClung rose up on his hind legs grandly on that point. Defendant was usual 'Enigma Woman,' though described as a mixture of Houdini and all the famous murderesses of history (prosecutors should read up on history, but they probably never will).

"These are jottings as things go on—you'll put them into your well-known style. Door closing!

"Elna J."

She turned with fury to the brief accompanying story:

"This is one of the most unusual stories in a lifetime—the first-hand impressions, written during her trial for murder. No newspaper man would dare write so frankly and so clearly as Elna Jepson. To the outsider the effect on the defendant of these last life-and-death words must be a mystery. May that mystery is unveiled, spontaneously, in words not meant for print. See in them the new Elna off guard!

"A short explanation may be in order. This unique document is authentic, as any handwriting expert could testify. The A. A. A. did not steal or obtain this document—in any improper manner. Others may care to read the usual lengthy accounts of final arguments. We stand on the notes of Elna Jepson . . ."

She had reached thus far when Jamieson called up from below: "Gentleman to see you, name of James. Do you want to see him?"

"Yes, I'll see him, if he cares to meet me." Elna's voice was icy.

Fine Turnout Seen For Tyger Party

Henry's Selection as Speaker Meets With Approval; Aiken Was Pete's Roommate at College; New Style Basket Introduced.

By OSCAR RUHL, News-Journal Sports Editor.

THE SELECTION of Pete Henry, or "Fats," as they call him, as the speaker for The News-Journal football banquet at which members of the Mansfield high school eleven will be honored has met with popular approval.

Although the former All-American has been away from Mansfield for a number of years, Henry retains a flock of followers, and, judging from the number of telephone calls this department has received approving the choice.there will be a fine turnout on hand to welcome him at the Mansfield-Leland hotel, Dec. 15.

Henry

Henry returns to the city frequently to visit his parents, but it is seldom that he is able to remain for any length of time. The banquet will enable him to renew acquaintances with former teammates of Mansfield high and friends whom he has few other chances to see.

We know Pete will appreciate seeing all of his old friends at the grid party, and the football boys will want them (and that includes you) there, too. So why not make a note on your calendar. Dec. 15 is the date, you know.

* * * * *

Speaking at Madison the other evening, Jimmy Aiken, Akron U. coach, stated that once his idea of the most optimistic man in the world was a football coach nursing championship ambitions with a squad of 135-pound boys. He has changed his mind since then, however. Now Aiken's conception of an optimist is a bald-headed man who buys a bottle of hair restorer from a bald-headed barber. We liked that.

* * * * *

Aiken Is Interesting Speaker.

AIKEN, incidentally, is one of the finest speakers we ever had the pleasure of hearing at a football banquet. With a background of many years of coaching, Aiken has accumulated a number of interesting yarns that no person could help from enjoying. Notice, football banquet speaker seekers· Aiken's the man for the job . . . if you can get him.

* * * * *

Judging from what conversation we heard at the Madison grid party, Aiken wouldn't mind having a youngster by the name of Johnny Hallabrin wearing an Akron uniform the coming falls. Johnny plans to go to college, we understand, but he has not yet selected a school.

* * * * *

Aiken also has nothing but praise for Pete Henry, and few know the Mansfield boy better than the Akron coach. Jimmy played and roomed with Henry two years at W. & J.

A new style basket is being introduced in several Ohio schools this year, and it will be necessary for the sports writers to eliminate the word "swish" to describe a ball going through the bucket for "click" in future write-ups of games. The new basket is attached with lights which go on whenever a basket is scored. The size of the hoop is unchanged and the nets are retained, but there are metal stays within the nettings serving as the trip-hammers for the lights. The purpose of the baskets is to aid officials in deciding whether the ball goes through the hoop or not Lorain, Sandusky and Elyria are included among the schools which have adopted the new baskets.

YUNCKER SPORTS HAND INMATES FIRST DEFEAT

Hayfer and Bogantz Lead City A League Team to Impressive 48 to 25 Victory.

YUNCKER SPORTS basketeers lifted the curtain on their 1937-38 season Thursday night by registering an impressive 48 to 25 victory over the strong Reformatory combine on the reformatory hardwood. It was the first defeat for the inmates.

The Sports, an entry in the City Class A basketball league this year, hopped into an early lead which they never relinquished. The winners outscored the Inmates in every period

Paced by Adam Brandt who accounted for 17 of the Sports' total points, Yunckers snatched a 13-5 lead in the opening frame and increased it to an overwhelming 26 to 8 advantage at the half

The Sportsmen added nine more points in the third period and as play was resumed in the final chapter they held a 35 to 15 lead.

Harold Hayfer and Bob Bogantz helped the Yuncker cause with 15 and nine points respectively

Smith paced the losers with nine points

Browns Trade Ex-Indian for Newsom, Mills and Kress at Milwaukee Meeting.

By PAUL MICKELSON

MILWAUKEE—(AP)—As National leaguers kept their hands in their pockets and held out for sharp bargains on the baseball market, eight American league players prepared for changes of scenery today.

In a major deal, St. Louis Browns traded Outfielder Joe Vosmik to the Boston Red Sox for Pitcher Buck Newson, Outfielder Colonel Buster Mills and the veteran infielder, Ralph "Red" Kress, an old Brown hand who made a comeback with Minneapolis of the American association last season.

Detroit swapped Outfielder Gerald Walker, Third Baseman Marvin Owen and Mike Tresh 23-year-old catcher who served with Portland of the Pacific Coast league, to the Chicago White Sox in exchange for Pitcher Vernon Kennedy, Outfielder Fred "Dixie" Walker and Infielder Tony Piet.

Breaks Market Calm.

It was the six-player deal between the White Sox and Tigers, which broke the calm of the market, one of the deadest in years at the minor league convention. Advised of the deal, the Red Sox and Browns went into a huddle and surprised everybody with their swap. Others clubs, notably Cleveland and Washington, now are expected to come up with something good in the way of deals by the time the major league meetings in Chicago close next week.

Nobody was ever excited about the Brown-Red Sox trade but the transaction between the White Sox and Tigers caused considerable commotion and comment.

Sifting it all, one finds both clubs did well for their respective set-ups. The Tigers needed a good pitcher and got it in Kennedy. The 28-year-old right-hander won 21 and lost 9 in 1936 but developed a wild streak last season that cut his record to 14 wins and 13 losses The White Sox needed a third baseman to replace Manager Jimmy Dykes and a hard hitting outfielder and they got them, too, in Owen and the eccentric Walker Those three players were the key men in the deal The others may find themselves operating at different pastures next season.

Ready to Disband.

Except for a possible last-minute deal and a perfunctory windup of the minor league convention, which failed to produce any interesting news, the baseball market was expected to be deserted by nightfall. The minor leaguers looked up train schedules for home while the major leaguers went to Chicago where the long-awaited trade of Pitcher Van Lingle Mungo of Brooklyn to either New York, Chicago or Pittsburgh should be announced. Last reports were the Giants held the trump card for the big fireball man.

Simpson Host To Hayesville

Opens Bi-County Cage League Schedule Tonight.

The John Simpson 7th and 8th grade teams will open its Bi-County league schedule at 7:30 p. m. today on the Simpson court against Hayesville. The Simpsonites won over Perrysville, 22 to 14, in a non-league game recently.

The team consists of Albert Hager, Charles Daugherty, Roger Dials and James Robertson, forwards, Jack Shiplet and Harold Hammer, centers, and Kenny Krupp and Bob Winbigler, guards.

Tyger Cagemen Inaugurate Schedule at Home Tonight

Men of Murphy Open Season With Akron Kenmore; Richland County, N. C. O. Teams Also Return to Action.

THE WINTER sport of basktball will make its first serious bid for recognition in this vicinity tonight.

A few scattered games have already been played on the boards, but tonight will mark the first appearance of the new Tyger edition of Mansfield high school and the majority of the Richland county league and N. C. O. conference quintets.

Coach Russ Murphy's cagers lift the lid on the Mansfield court at 8:15 p. m., against Akron Kenmore. The game will be preceded by a preliminary tussle featuring the Mansfield reserves against Jim Karch's Butler Ex-Hys.

Primed for Opener.

With two weeks of hard practice behind them, the Tygers are primed for their opener which will take them against a veteran Kenmore quintet.

While a number of practice games have been played, Murphy is not definitely set on a regular lineup.

However, he plans to start Dave Shelly and Tom Scott, who starred on the reserve team last year, at the forwards, Jack Dugger, who showed much promise on the Simpson junior high quintet last winter, will get the call over the taller Elmer Dials at the pivot post.

John Hallabrin, who captained this year's football club, will be at one of the guards, and he is the only veteran of the 1936-37 quintet in the lineup. Jack Lyons is slated to hold down the guard post vacated by the slippery Noel Morgan.

Other players who are expected to see service tonight are Freddy Lewis, a letterman who will graduate at mid-season, and Rudolph, forwards; Dials and Gallagher, centers, and Nagle, Smith, Moorhead and Finefrock, guards.

Team Locks Height.

The team as a whole lacks height, but Murphy expects to develop a fast-breaking and adept ball handling club out of the material he has available. The lack of varsity experience is expected to handicap the basketeers in the opening games

Three County League Games on Schedule.

THE county league schedule includes three games tonight, and it should provide an interesting program for the teams' followers. Tonight's games take Madison to Bellville, Lucas to Ontario, and Union to Butler.

All of the teams have played at least one game except Ontario, defending champion which advanced to the state tournament, and Madison, regarded as two of the younger quintets in the circuit.

Ontario is expected to have its hands full with Lucas, which has already turned in victories against Union and Lexington, idle tonight. The championship Ontario club was riddled by graduation, and only two members of the team are back.

Madison's Rams have shown up well in practice, and should again develop into one of the stronger outfits in the league.

Butler defeated Perrysville in the only game it has played this season, while Union has dropped two decisions.

Four N. C. O. Quints Open This Week.

THE N. C. O. conference season does not get under way for several weeks, but four of the six clubs will be in action against non-league opponents this weekend.

In games tonight, Mt. Vernon is host to Upper Sandusky and Bucyrus entertains New Washington Shelby travels to Norwalk and Marion opens at Upper Sandusky Saturday night.

'IT IS HARD—THIS MOVIE BUSINESS,' SAYS PRETTY SONJA OF SKATE FAME

By HENRY McLEMORE

HOLLYWOOD — (UP) — She's a good skate We all agreed on that at Lake Placid, five years ago, when she was defending her Olympic championship. In the evening she used to drop in on what the newspapermen called the cellar A. C. for a snack. She was mighty pretty then, too, and the boys paid her great compliment by stopping their play at the slot machines just to sit and look at her, and listen to her giggly little laugh and appealing Norwegian accent.

Sonja Henie

I saw Sonja Henie yesterday for the first time since those winter Olympic days in the Adirondacks She's a movie star now Her name is up in lights, her pictures gross millions, but she is the same Sonja Maybe a little prettier but that's the only difference. That, and the amount of work she does.

"It is hard—this movie business," she said. "It is so much harder than skating for medals. I work more in one day on this picture than I did in winning three world championships. I get up at five in the morning and skate until dinner time. I skate and skate and skate. I do it perfect. I know But the director spots a flaw somewhere else, blows a whistle and all must be done over again."

Not long afterwards they resumed shooting on her new picture, "Happy Landings," and I saw what Sonja meant. In one scene, which has a background of a snow-covered forest, Sonja is supported by a chorus of men and women dancers on ice skates.

For some two or three minutes everything was perfect, with the chorus skating gracefully about Sonja as she whirled through an intricate maneuver. Then, just as Sonja spun in the air for the finale, a whistle blew and the director boomed through the microphone·

"Nelson, pull up your tights!"

The director, Roy Del Ruth, had spotted some drooping tights on one of the chorus boys.

The scene was shot again and again First it was the tights, then it was vibration in a camera. Then one of the girl skaters slipped and fell. On each one of these retakes Sonja had to go through her physically exhausting routine.

When it was finally done Sonja confided that when the picture is finished she is going on an exhibition tour with her skaters.

"It will be grand," she said, "just to skate once a day. We will go to Chicago, Detroit, New York, Cleveland, Boston, and finally Miami. For all of us it will be great fun No whistles, no cameras, no nothing."

Indians Sign Bassler, Re-sign Schang.

MILWAUKEE — The Cleveland Indians furthered plans for the coming season by completing their coaching roster with the acquisition of John Bassler, former Detroit catcher. Wally Schang, another former American league receiver, has been retained for the other coaching post.

It was also announced here that Oscar Melillo of the Boston Red Sox has been released to permit him to take a coaching post with the St. Louis Browns.

PICKS RICE, TENNESSEE

Barker Also Seeks Victory For Trojans In Games Billed Saturday.

By HERBERT W. BARKER

NEW YORK—(AP)—Call this the swan-song of an ugly duckling or the farewell fol-de-rol of a gridiron guesser, about to quit the eight-ball for commodious winter quarters among the mothballs. To make a short story even shorter, prospects for this week's slender schedule appear about as follows:

Southern Methodist-Rice: This determines the Southwest conference crown and a Cotton Bowl opponent for Whizzer White and his University of Colorado buddies. This ballot goes to Rice in the belief that Ernie Lain's pitching arm has lost none of it power or cunning.

Southern California-U. C. L. A.: Maybe the Trojans still will be train-sick after that jaunt to South Bend, but Southern California must be given a big edge over U. C. L. A., one of the biggest disappointments of the year.

Tulsa-Manhattan: The New Yorkers' biggest victories this year have been over passing teams—Detroit and Michigan State, for instance. Somehow or other this corner is willing to let that fact be forgotten long enough to cast an uncertain vote for Tulsa.

Tennessee-Mississippi: Tennessee must get the nod.

Mississippi State-Duquesne: Out of the hat, Duquesne.

Miami-South Carolina: Miami beat Catholic; Catholic beat South Carolina; therefore Miami will beat South Carolina. Or will it? Miami.

Florida-Kentucky: Probably close. Florida.

San Francisco-Texas A. and M.: Texas A and M

Arizona-Oregon: Looks close enough to justify a flier on Arizona.

Centenary-Louisiana Tech: Centenary.

Loyola (Los Angeles)-Gonzaga: The coin says Loyola.

P. S.: Georgia to beat Miami on Dec. 10.

Crestline Boy Honored

BOB BORDEN

CULVER, Ind. — Bob Borden, 163 Seltzer street, Crestline, was signally honored at the Culver Military academy this week when he was awarded the Logue medal for being the most outstanding player on the varsity football team this season.

Borden played three years as varsity end on the Culver Flying Squadron and is considered to be one of the best ends ever developed at the academy. Although weighing but 165 pounds Borden was a power on both the offense and defense and was particularly adept as a blocker and pass receiver. Always on his toes, Borden paved the way for several cadet touchdowns this season by blocking punts and recovering fumbles.

The Culver Flying Squadron, although it dropped three of its nine games this year, outscored the opponents 253 to 77 to rank as one of the high scoring prep machines in the country.

ANNOUNCES SCHEDULE

GRANVILLE—(AP)—Tom Rogers, Denison university football coach, announced today an eight-game schedule for 1938. It includes games at home with Defiance, Kenyon, Marietta, Oberlin and Heidelberg and on the road against Wooster, Muskingum and Wittenberg.

Demands Return Match Between Ruth, Montague.

NEW YORK—(AP)—A return engagement of golfers John Montague and Babe Ruth—this time to a "select" gallery—was demanded today by Marty Forkins, who wants to wager "any amount" that Montague is the better golfer. Forkins, who is manager of Montague, was incensed by Ruth's statement that he had beaten the Hollywood mystery man in four straight exhibition matches.

There appeared little room for argument, however, because Ruth had professed to believe that Montague was his superior at golf and had lost only because he was out of practice. Ruth was reluctant to acknowledge his victories, and did so only after being questioned for days by sports writers who had heard reports of them.
